VOL. NO. 77. CAMERON, MILAM COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1937 NUMBER 7.

BOY VICTIM OF BLAST NEAR DEATH

FOUR TEST LOCATIONS ARE MADE

30,000 ACRES IN BIG BLOCK

Milam county was due to get considerable oil play this summer now that more than 30,000 acres have been leased and blocked and locations made for four tests.

Although in recent years the county had had occasional plays they have amounted to little more than lease and royalty selling campaings. Shallow oil has been produced in the county for almost 20 years.

The acreage now in block was assembled by Dr. W. H. Manness of Houston.

Locations for the Kingdon Exploration Company of which Dr. Manness is an official have been made. The test area centers in the Jones Prairie community and extends east to the Brazos River. The locations, according to reports trail a fault line extending over 24 miles.

The tendency to overestimate pay dirt makes difficult any reasonable presentation of the facts. Reports say the 4 tests will go down to the Glen Rose sand expected to be encountered at 4700 feet. Apparently no attempt will be made for Trinity. The Edwards lime has been tested indefinitely and will be encountered above the Glen Rose sand.

Chamber Commerce Approves Purchase of Foundation Bull

Chamber of Commerce heard a report from the special dairy committee Tuesday night. Other reports were also made.

Disagreement over a co-operative program for dairy interests here kept the Senators until after ten o'clock. It was finally agreed that the committee of which F. E. Woodruff is chairman, could proceed to buy a bull from the Luling Foundation and also sale of two bulls was authorized.

The Chamber of Commerce has not elected as yet to actively follow a policy of assisting farmers to buy cattle. The Woodruff committee has succeeded in its propaganda work.

At The THEATRE

By GEO. WINCHELLE

Here's something new . . . a new star, handsome, talented and infinitely likeable. He is that delightful king of French hearts, Fernand Cravet and comes to the screen of the Cameron Theater for the first time in "The King and Chorus Girl". Opposite the new star plays Joan Blondell who takes the wealthy ex-monarch for a ride down the lane of romantic glamor. Its a comedy, and a sparkling romance. This column recommends it. Cravet makes his American debut in this picture. Wake up and live. Go and see this picture today and Friday, June 11th.

Go early to the Cameron Theater Saturday June 12th. The reason is Charley Chan. You will want a good seat from which to see this greatest of Warner Oland's detective mystery pictures "Chan at the Olympics" gives Oland a chance to do some of his cleverest sleuthing. There is a breath taking romance under the baffling events of the story. Pauline Moore and Allan Lane take a leading part. Both are climbing new stars of the screen.

Something new in the way of screen idols but and old and never failing story of gripping drama, greets you Sunday and Monday at the Cameron Theater. The Mauch Twins and Errol Flynn give you "The Prince and the Pauper." Nelson Eddy and Jeanette McDonald brought

ROBERTS STORE GETS RECORD SALE CROWD

Merchandising history was made here Saturday when the Roberts 5c to $1 store held formal opening and engaged in two days of selling to celebrate the launching of the new store.

N. L. Caperton, manager of the store, said one of the largest crowds ever to attend any store opening in Cameron came to the Roberts store on Friday and Saturday.

The store served over 2500 ice cream cones. The opening advertising announced free ice cream to all who come to the store during the two days. Despite the rainfall of Friday the store sold a large volume of goods.

One amazing feature of the opening was the sale of candy. One thousand pounds of candy was sold at 5c per pound.

Mr. Caperton is well pleased. "We desire that each one know our sincere apreciation. It was one of the most successful formal openings ever held in the city and we are deeply grateful for this response to the opening sale and invite each one to come again. We are continuing the bargains at this store."

AIR TANK BURSTS UNDER PRESSURE HERE MONDAY

Wesley Nicholson, 15 year old son of Otis Nicholson is in the Cameron Hospital with only a slight chance for recovery following the explosion of a small gasoline tank here Monday evening.

Wesley was employed at the Grady Houston Cafe and had taken the tank to a filling station nearby to put air in the container. The explosion tore away a portion of his chin and face. One lung was punctured from a valve stem or bolt from the tank.

Dr. C. G. Swift, his physician, was waging a desperate battle to save the life of the lad. Reports at noon Wednesday were not encouraging. An emergency operation was performed shortly after the explosion.

TYSON COMPILES CITY STATEMENT

Dan Tyson, city secretary and treasurer, has compiled for publication, a statement of the financial condition of the City of Cameron for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1937.

The statement, published in this issue of The Herall, is the most comprehensive ever published. It is a remarkable statement of the affairs of the city in that it goes into a wealth of understandable detail of every phase of the government's finances.

Mr. Tyson, expert in accounting and auditing as well as one of the most efficient public officials in the history of the city, shows by the records that all his funds are in perfect balance. For the first time he lists the bonded debt of the city and shows disposition of all sinking funds together with proper balances.

In detail a number of new financial accounts have been introduced to the city books under Mr. Tyson's administration. These, including the new vocational building. He also discusses the school bonded debt and gives a table explaining the account.

Each fun is listed separately showing receipts, disbursements and balances.

Of special importance is the unusually good financial condition of the city. No money has been borrowed. The government has operated its business efficiently and a comfortable balance is shown in all funds.

The citizens of Cameron will appreciate the care Mr. Tyson has taken to compile this best of all financial statements for the city's fiscal year.

LABOR TROUBLES

(Editor's Note: This article is published as a news item and represents the personal views of Mr. Ferguson only.)

Labor strikes continue to grow. The public has been informed for some time that strikes have been confined to the large factories and labor troubles have not yet extended to the smaller employers of labor.

A friend of mine who has made a trip through the North and East says that the strike situation is far more extensive than people are informed about. This friend tells me that many small factories have been closed down two to three months, and in some towns bakeries have been closed for weeks and no mention has been made of the fact in the daily papers. Be that as it may, the papers each day carry the statement of new strikes, and it was reported last week that 70,000 men in the steel industry walked out.

Even here at home garment workers are on strike in Dallas and San Antonio, and several hundred garage mechanics in Houston are on strike. In almost every place the strikers are demanding higher wages and fewer working days and shorter hours.

Henry Ford, who has paid higher wages under comfortable conditions than anybody of his day and generation is now confronted with union labor's demand for recognition of the union higher pay. Mexico reports 18,000 on strike in the oil fields. In almost every part of the country there is some form of labor agitation and dispute.

It is not my purpose in this article to attempt to say who is right or wrong in the different strike situations. Labor employees may be right or wrong. Employers in refusing labor's demands may be right or wrong. Time will tell. But what I want to call attention to is the wide extent of the strike and the probabiliy of wider extension of strikes and the result that many develop.

If the laboring ranks now on strike should be able to force employers to grant their demand for higher pay and shorter hours, then it may be expected that thousands upon thousands of other laborers not now on strike will join the strikers and riots which have taken place will be very small in comparison as to what may be expected when a majority of labor joins the contest.

Notwithstanding the already wide extent of strikes, the people as yet do not appear to be concerned about the situation, and though the condition grows worse every day the people generally are paying no attention to the seriousness of what may happen.

If anybody will just stop and think for a minute as to what this strike issue may result in, they will see that there is grave danger to the public as well as the employers and employees who are now engaged in the stirke controversy. All the strikers and their employers are engaged in business that directly involves the people and the issue is how much the public must put up to satisfy labor's demand for wages and hours. While the people appear to be sleeping, it is quite evident that this is the people's business that labor and employers are fighting over.

Sooner or later the people will be called on to discuss the merits of the contest, and whether they want to or not, the people will have to take sides in the contest. Should such a situation arise, it is not to be expected that the people will agree. As a matter of fact we know they will be divided, and revolutionary conditions will afflict the people now at peace with each other and taking no active part in the dispute between employers and empolyees.

It is now high time for the people to begin to give some cool and mature thought to conditions which threaten them. It appears that the situation might become so serious as to get beyond control. I urge the people to think yo on these things. A stitch in time saves nine. An ounce of preventative is worth a pound of cure.

NOTE: No tax levy is made for the retirement of the Sewer Revenue Construction Bonds and interest. Payment is made from revenue received from sewer connections. During the year $5,000 of these bonds were cancelled by The Federal Government. The Government was supposed to make final [illegible] to the City but instead elected to send $5,000 of said bonds in for cancellation. These bonds were cancelled by Government and sent to City in lieu [illegible] final P W A grant.

To The People of Cameron

In the management of the City Government, the Mayor and Board of Aldermen have labored diligently to give an administration of rigid economy as far as possible and at the same time maintain a financial status ranking second to none when compared to other municipalities where taxable values are similar.

In adhering to strict business methods the City has for several years been in position to extend to the tax payers an unusual privilege of a liberal discount for prompt payment of taxes For the year 1935 and 1936 discounts have been taken by various tax payers amounting to $4,642.81.

In conformity to a state law all municipalities are required to prepare and submit annually a Budget for public inspection. The Budget shows in detail all anticipated receipts and disbursements for the year for which tax levies are to be made. The City Council must as far as possible operate within the budget unless an emergency arises. The City Secretary is required to prepare and submit such budget each year for inspection and approval. When same is approved and adopted by the City Government a true copy is forwarded to the State Comptrollers Department at Austin. This requirement is carried out as prescribed by law by your City.

As collections are received and remittances made to the City the proper distributions to the several interest and sinking funds are made and deposited as required by the statutes

At the close of the City's fiscal year, March 31st, 1937, (as shown on statement) there was to the credits of all city funds the sum of $18,422.89. Of said amount the sum of $6,264.96 was credited to the various interest and sinking funds. At the close of the year 1935 the interest and sinking funds had credits of $2,515.36. An increase of $3,749.60, over previous year.

The total tax rate for both city and schools is $2.25 on the $100.00 valuation. The distribution is as follows: $1.50 for all city purposes and $0.75cts for school purposes. Out of the $1.50 (which is the maxium for the city) the City Council must retire, (in addition to all other bonds, interest, warrants and obligations) $5000.00 of Public Free School Building Bonds each year and pay interest on outstanding School Bonds which amounts at this time to $4,675.00. For Example: On August 20th, 1937 the city will pay along with all other interest payments the sum of $2,337.50 semi-annual interest on the $85,000.00 outstanding Public Free School Building Bonds. On February 20th, 1938, the City must retire $5000.00 of school bonds and pay the sum of $2,337.50 semi-annual interest, making a total to be paid in School bonds and interest by the city $9,675.00. I mention this because of the fact that there has been some question as to whether the city or the School pays the bonds and interest of the Public Free School System.

Since 1934 two major projects have been completed invol[illegible]g considerabl[illegible] expenditures by the city and [illegible]ederal Govern[illegible]nt.

The $29,500.00 Sewer Extension System and the $36,000.00 Physical Education and Vocational Building. In order to meet the requirements of the Federal Government it was necessary for the City Secretary and Council to cooperate and work in conjunction with Federal Authorities.

Several additional accounts, such as Sewer Operation and Maintenance, Interest Bond and Retirement and Construction and Building fund and others have been opened up and carried thru the City Depository in order to differentiate between the two departments.

All City funds are Deposited in the Citizens National Bank of Cameron, Texas. This Bank was designated City Depository by the City Council last year. A bond to protect the funds is furnished by the bank in the amount of $50,000.00.

I have endeavored to compile in a comprehensive way the above statement showing in detail as far as possible the status of the City's financial condition at the close of business March 31st, 1937. I have in most instances shown all receipts and disbursements separately, particularly the major items. In some cases (in order to utilize space and save expense) I have condensed some of the minor transactions. However, if the setup, figures and the arrangement of same are difficult or complicated and not readily interpreted, either as relates to the general receipts and disbursements, various bond and sinking funds, or special accounts, etc., I shall be very glad to explain and verify if requested to do so.

Very truly,
DAN TYSON, City Secretary-Treasurer.

FARM CLUB NEWS

As a part of her wardrobe demonstration for the Milano 4H club Billie Glenn Hensley intends to enlarge her clothes closet so that it is approximately two feet deep, six feet long, and high enough to reach the ceiling. By increasing the depth of the closet, she will prevent the shoulders of her dresses rubbing against the walls; by increasing the length, she will have a closet large enough to care for all of her clothing; and by extending the height of the closet to the ceiling, she will without taking up any more space in the room provide herself with almost as much storage space as she now has. Because of the arrangement of the doors in the corner of the room where Billie Glenn has her closet, she will be able to make these changes in its proportions without any additional loss in wall space.

No farm home need be without magazines or farm papers if the experience of Mrs. Adolph Hanel, home food supply demonstrator of the Ad Hall Home Demonstration Club can be taken as an example. Mrs. Hanel trades canned goods for subscription and has four of the better farm papers and magazines as a result. At least one of these has been renewed using home canned food in payment, which indicates that her prolucts are good.

A barbecue dinner was served to several hundred men and women from Rockdale and the district.

In the afternoon session an interesting talk was made by Connie Jones on how to increase membership. Many expressed their views.

Grady Hutchins of Marlin was elected District Committeeman and Ray Marshall of Rockdale, assistant. Grady Little of Cameron was elected delegate to the National Convention in New York from the 11 District. Ryle Carnahan was elected alternate delegate.

The most interesting talk of the day was made by Rev. Byrn Keatherly of Mineral Wells, National Chaplain. Local Legionaires said Texas should be proud to have a man of this type to represent them as Chaplain.

"Woman Chases Man" Samuel Goldwyn's hilarious film comedy, brings Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea and a great cast to the screen of the Cameron Theater, Wednesday June 15th. The back ground of this picture is a swanky office and from it the currents of life tangle in more absurdities than you can shake a stick at all of which gives Miriam Hopkins and McCrea their best comely role of the year.

Karen Morely gave up a medical career to become a screen actress. Always a favorite with Cameron Theater goers she brings you the best sort of performance in a story of intrigue and spies. Milam County has eight other Gold Star girls to its credit: Mabel Evard in 1931; Nadine Loftin and Opal Loftin in 1934; and Estelle Cryer, Ruth Jennings, Florence Johns, Marie Mertz and Lldia Shroeder in 1935.

POULTRY CULLINGS HELD IN COUNTY

Cull often, feed well, house properly, and keep flocks free from diseases and parasites if you would make a profit from your poultry flock, E. D. Parnell, Cameron teacher of Vocational Agriculture, told farmers and farm women during culling demonstrations held over Milam county during the past two weeks.

Breed high production into your flock and then feed it out, Parnell told those in attendance. Good management with poorly bred hens will not pay, it was stated. If one culling a year is done, June or July, are the best months, altho 3 to 4 cullings a year give better results.

Early moulters, undersized hens, sick hens, those yellow with pigment in summer months, and old hens, should all be culled out, it was stated. Points of good layers, as pointed out at the demonstrations are large size, good health, well faded pigment in spring and summer, late moulters and those hens of good breed type

The demonstrations were held in cooperation with Dorothy Porter, Home Demonstration Agent and were given at Jones Prairie, Bryant Station, Duncan, Curry, Sandy Creek and Gause.

LABOR TROUBLES

(Editor's Note: This article is published as a news item and represents the personal views of Mr. Ferguson only.)

Labor strikes continue to grow. The public has been informed for some time that strikes have been confined to the large factories and labor troubles have not yet extended to the smaller employers of labor.

A friend of mine who has made a trip through the North and East says that the strike situation is far more extensive than people are informed about. This friend tells me that many small factories have been closed down two to three months, and in some towns bakeries have been closed for weeks and no mention has been made of the fact in the daily papers. Be that as it may, the papers each day carry the statement of new strikes, and it was reported last week that 70,000 men in the steel industry walked out.

Even here at home garment workers are on strike in Dallas and San Antonio, and several hundred garage mechanics in Houston are on strike. In almost every place the strikers are demanding higher wages and fewer working days and shorter hours.

Henry Ford, who has paid higher wages under comfortable conditions than anybody of his day and generation is now confronted with union labor's demand for recognition of the union higher pay. Mexico reports 18,000 on strike in the oil fields. In almost every part of the country there is some form of labor agitation and dispute.

It is not my purpose in this article to attempt to say who is right or wrong in the different strike situations. Labor employees may be right or wrong. Employers in refusing labor's demands may be right or wrong. Time will tell. But what I want to call attention to is the wide extent of the strike and the probabiliy of wider extension of strikes and the result that many develop.

If the laboring ranks now on strike should be able to force employers to grant their demand for higher pay and shorter hours, then it may be expected that thousands upon thousands of other laborers not now on strike will join the strikers and riots which have taken place will be very small in comparison as to what may be expected when a majority of labor joins the contest.

Notwithstanding the already wide extent of strikes, the people as yet do not appear to be concerned about the situation, and though the condition grows worse every day the people generally are paying no attention to the seriousness of what may happen.

* * *

If anybody will just stop and think for a minute as to what this strike issue may result in, they will see that there is grave danger to the public as well as the employers and employees who are now engaged in the stirke controversy. All the strikers and their employers are engaged in business that directly involves the people and the issue is how much the public must put up to satisfy labor's demand for wages and hours. While the people appear to be sleeping, it is quite evident that this is the people's business that labor and employers are fighting over.

Sooner or later the people will be called on to discuss the merits of the contest, and whether they want to or not, the people will have to take sides in the contest. Should such a situation arise, it is not to be expected that the people will agree. As a matter of fact we know they will be divided, and revolutionary conditions will afflict the people now at peace with each other and taking no active part in the dispute between employers and empolyees.

It is now high time for the people to begin to give some cool and mature thought to conditions which threaten them. It appears that the situation might become so serious as to get beyond control. I urge the people to think yo on these things. A stitch in time saves nine. An ounce of preventative is worth a pound of cure.

FORD "60" OWNERS REPORT

22-27 MILES PER GALLON

THE 60-horsepower Ford V-8 is writing remarkable mileage records on American roads. Private owners and fleet operators alike report averages of from 22 to 27 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

You can fill the tank of your Ford "60" and drive all day — 300 to 400 miles — without stopping again for fuel. Besides costing less to run than any Ford car ever built, it sells at the lowest Ford price in years. That's double economy!

The "60" delivers V-8 smoothness and quiet at speeds up to 70 miles an hour. It is built into the same roomy body as the famous "85"—with the same modern features of comfort and dependability that make the 1937 Ford V-8 unquestionably THE QUALITY CAR IN THE LOW-PRICE FIELD.

Ford V-8 "60"

FORD V-8 PRICES BEGIN AT $529 at Dearborn Factory. Transportation charges, State and Federal taxes extra

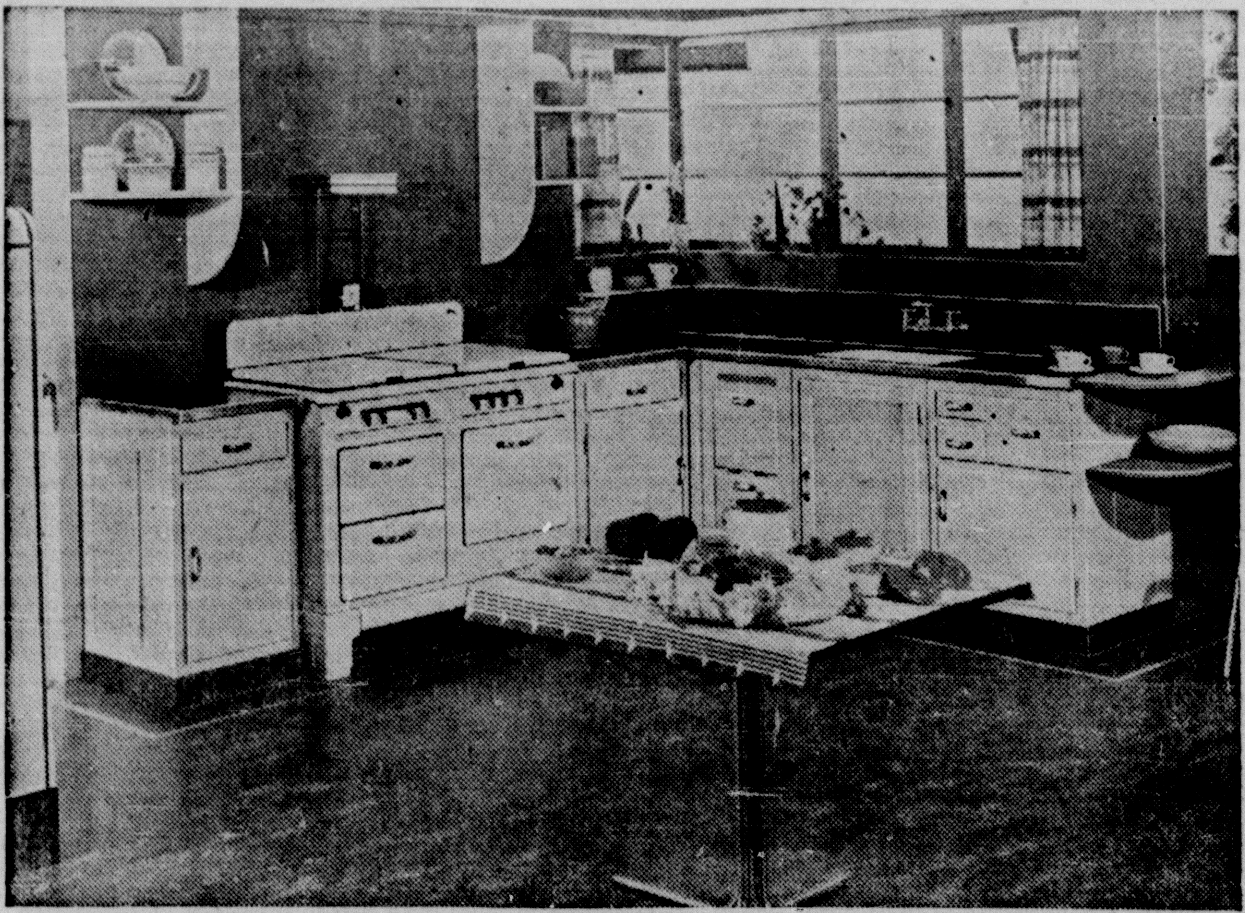
that ugly old Range!



Sparkling Beauty of 1937 Gas Range is Glorifying the American Kitchen!

The range is the focal point of a kitchen. An ugly, out-of-date one can damage the appearance of an otherwise attractive kitchen. Likewise, a glistening 1937 gas range can bring an old kitchen up to date and give it new beauty. And that's just what so many smart Texas home-makers are doing—glorifying their kitchen with the sparkling beauty of today's gas range. Any wonder, when they can get such a liberal trade-in allowance on their old range and pay for the new one on terms so small the money will hardly be missed? Trade in your old range and put your kitchen ahead in style. See your gas company or appliance dealer.

WASHINGTON
NEWS
FROM OUR CONGRESSMAN
W·R·POAGE

I have been enjoying a visit to my own District for the past few days. I arrived in Waco last Wednesday at noon, but the time in Texas has seemed all too short. I leave for Washington tomorrow (Tuesday) morning. I came down on the train, but shall drive back and take my mother up for a visit. I think that it would be a fine thing for the country if every member of Congress could visit his home people at least once a month. Of course, that is impossible where it is as far from the District to Washington as it is with us, but these visits home certainly enable a Representative to more nearly keep in touch with the views of the people of his own District. One of the dangers of any strong central government far removed from the local people, is that the officials will come gradually to see problems more and more from the view point of the Bureaus and Departments at the Capitol and less and less from the view point of the taxpayer at home.

In this connection, I call attention to the manner in which every one of the emergency agencies are now trying to be made permanent and to secure civil service status for their personnel. They have led many of our people to feel that these employees should be forced on civil service, but at the same time we all know that most of these agencies must be abolished if we are to ever cut government expenses. However, if we are to place all of the employees on a permanent status we will never be able to abolish this expense. We could then wipe out the governmental service, but we would still have all of the employees still on the payrolls. I delayed my trip to Texas on last week and till Monday in order to be present at the final vote on the W. P. A. Bill. (I had already voted on the amount on Friday.) However, we did not vote Monday and in fact the House has not yet finally voted on the bill. I left a "pair" but expect I will be in Washington before the bill is completed. I do not feel that the earmarking of funds for P. W. A. and Highway work is in any way "porkbarrel" as many reports have indicated.

These projects will provide work for the needy just as truly as leaf-raking projects and at the same time the money thus spent will give us something worthwhile in years to come and to my mind this is the sound way to provide relief—Make our relief money not only provide employment, but also make it build some public works of lasting value.

A week ago, Dr. W. R. Powers who has served as postmaster at Temple passed away. Under the recently promulgated executive orders, the Congressman will no longer have any choice in the selection of a permanent postmaster at a first, second or third class office. In the past a list of three names has been submitted by the Civil Service Commission, and the Congressman could name any one of the three. Under the new order, only one name will be submitted—the high man and the Postmaster General must appoint that one. However, pending the holding of the examination, there must be an acting postmaster, and the Congressman can still recommend the party to fill this temporary position. I have felt that it was a proper thing to promote some experienced man from the ranks of the office, and, am, therefore, recommending Mr. W. N. Robertson, who is probably the oldest Democrat in point of service in the Temple Office.

Army

The good will party is intended to instruct citizens about Army life and give them an idea of Army training.

Officers Named

Officers to be in the party are: Major Lewis A. Page, commanding; Capt. E. H. McDaniel, Ninth Infantry; Capt. W. W. Roe, Second Medical Regiment; 1st Lieut. J. L. Dark, Second Tank Company; 1st Lieut. W. J. Givens, Second Signal Company; Lieut L. K. Pepple, 23rd Infantry; Lieut. J. J. Jakel, Ninth Infantry, and Lieut S. W. Gooch, 15th Field Artillery.

Gen. Parson's Plan

The idea is set in motion by Maj. Gen. James K. Parson, division commander, who has assigned Maj. Page to head the party. The party will leave the Fort on June 15th for a swing into the northeastern part of the state.

Maj. Page, in a letter to Secretary Paden of the Chamber of Commerce, outlines in detal the day's program in Cameron. The party is to make other stops during the day of the 17th. Maj. Page suggests a two hour program in the afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock and a display only during the evening from 8 to 9 o'clock.

Military Band

The Ninth Infantry Band will furnish music at the beginning of the show, once or twice during the show and a short concert following the show, both afternoon and evening. After the concert the program will be complete and the units will enter camp for the night. The party will depart from Cameron about 6:30 on the morning of June 18th.

Big Day Planned

The Chamber of Commerce plans to entertain the people as well as the Army units on that date. Crowds are expected. Methods of advertising the event has not yet been worked out.

Maj. Page explains in detail each unit of display. The people are asked to come and see these modern army units and acquaint themselves with their army. Of special interest is the Tank unit featuring one of the latest model tanks with speed of 45 miles per hour. A field kitchen will be set up in charge of First Sergeant and Mess Sergeant, clerk and 3 cooks. A chemical detachment is also included and people may see at first hand equipment for protection against gas weapons and munitions.

SALUTATORY ADDRESS

by

WINNELLE KIDD

Salutatorian Class of 1937 of Yoe High School

We, the Class of 1937, salute this splendid audience. Your presence pleases us and honors the occasion; and we extend happy greetings of hearty welcome. This welcome is joyous, yet serious. One view of the record discloses that we have fought a good fight and have finished the course, and this disclosure swells our hearts with joy and pride. Another view reveals that, as Yoe High tourists, we have reached the end of the trail and that, tonight, we loiter and linger at the parting of the ways. This revelation impels emotions imbued with a tinge of sadness and regret. The welcome we extend is, therefore, the more genuine and sincere, because it wells from hearts not only exultant of proud achievement, but tempered with solemn meditation.

It is worthy of mention that nearly one-half the members of the class comes from homes beyond the limits of the Cameron Independent School District. By means of school busses and other motor vehicles 50 of the class of 103 daily have overcome the impediment of distance in order to avail themselves of the opportunities, and to enjoy the advantages, offered at Yoe High Hence, as evidenced by the situation at our own school, transportation is among the modern facilities for promoting the cause of education. This suggests for brief discussion the subject "The Development of Transportation."

Transportation is the conveyance of passengers and freight from one place to another. The three elements, water, land and air, furnish the support for all transportation.

It is thought that the support for the earliest methods of transportation was water. The earliest sea-faring product was the raft, which floated with the currents and the waves. In its wake followed canoes, hewn from the trunks of trees, and row boats and skiffs, propelled by oars.

In time the ancient sailboats came into use, and for many centuries were the caravans of the sea. The "Santa Maria" and two other sailboats composed the fleet of Columbus on his voyage that resulted in the discovery of America, in 1492. The "Mayflower," that brought the Pilgrims to America in 1620, was a sailboat.

In 1807 the American, Robert Fulton, propelled the steamship, the "Clermont," which was the beginning of steam navigation; and since this achievement the steamship has been the acknowledged master of the waves.

It is interesting to contrast the size and capacity of the primitive canoe, capable of conveying one to half a dozen persons, with the size and capacity of modern seacraft. The British vessel, "Queen Mary," for instance, is more than 11,000 feet in length and has a capacity of 80,000 tons. Of no less interest is the contrast of the speed of the sailboats with that of present-day vessels. The "Mayflower" was three months and five days in crossing the Atlantic. Today a swift steamship can make the voyage in four to five days.

The earliest vehicle for land transportation was the two-wheel ox cart. Then followed the four-wheel vehicle, the wagon, the buggy, the surrey, and the stagecoach. These constituted the most advanced means of land transportation until the early part of the 19th century.

In 1814, seven years after the coming of the steamship, George Stephens, an Englishman, installed the first railway locomotives, "The Puffing Billy." This event was followed by the mass building of railroads; and today, it is estimated that there are between 250,000 and 300,000 miles of railway lines in the United States alone.

Nearly one hundred years after the arrival of the railway locomotive, the motor vehicle made its advent. In the year 1900 there were 700 motor cars in use in the United States and slightly more than 10,000 in all the world. Today, in the United States alone, the number of registered motor vehicles is more than twenty-six million.

The speed of present-day travel by land is marvelous when compared with the speed of such travel in the 19th century. One hundred forty years ago a freight wagon required several days to cover the distance from New York to Philadelphia. In 1870 Calvert, twenty-five miles distanc, was this community's nearest railroad point. The diary of a farmer then residing on Little River, near Cameron, shows that on Thursday, January 13, 1870, he started to Calvert to market his ox-wagon cargo of cotton; that he camped the first night at Massengale's, beyond Maysfield, the second night, at the Brazos River and reached Calvert Saturday, Jaunary 15; that he spent Sunday in Calvert, sold his cotton Monday and started home, camping Monday night at the Brazos, Tuesday night at Harral's Creek and reaching home about 112 o'clock Wednesday, January 19. A few days ago a Santa Fe streamed-lined passenger train moved from Chicago to Los Angeles, a distance of 2228 miles, in thirty-six hours and forty-nine minutes, approximately a day and a half.

Air transportation is the realization of a dream recorded in ancient mythology. A Grecian myth relates that Icarus, by artificial wings with wax fastenings, soared through the air until he approached the sun, which melted the wax fastenings and plunged him into the sea.

For centuries human ingenuity and endeavor were applied almost to the point of exhaustion in the project to master the air with the flying machine. Scores of industrious machinists and machanics spent their lives and fortunes at the project; but the longing was not satisfied until the year 1908, when the Wright Bros. Americans, first successfully operated the aircraft. In 1909 Wilbur and Orville Wright, in the presence of President Taft and his cabinet, presented the spectacle of a non-stop flight of seven miles and return. This accomplishment was followed by the successful construction and operation of airplanes by various persons in different countries. Just ten years ago Chas. A. Lindbergh, a young American, who received a part of his training in Texas, in his airplane, the "Spirit of St. Louis," set out on his famous solo flight from New York to Paris, which he accomplished in 33 1-2 hours.

In recent years aviation is extensively employed in transporting passengers, mail and light freight. It is the paramount achievement in the development of transportation. The class of '37 applauds its advent and marvels at its progress and accomplishments. We anticipate its still more marvelous development, though we do not entertain or encourage the hope of goin to heaven in an airplane.

From the dawn of creation transportation has been a most potent factor in the development of human enterprise. To it we are indebted for modern comfort and conveniences. It is the chief support of commerce and exchange, and without it they would collapse. Through it educational interests are advanced; and, in broadcasting information, through speedy delivery of letters, newspapers and magazines, it serves as an efficient agency for enlightening the world. Conquering the obstcles of time and distance, it unites widely separatel communities, spreads the gospel of peace and promotes the good-neighbor policy among the nations of the earth.

Tonight the class of '37 disbands, its members to tread new paths and to enter fields of new evironments. From this brief review of the rapid development of the one modern agency, transportation, we are mindful that to cope with the alert forces of the progressive age in which our lots are cast, we must "be up and doing," and will need a full measure of industry and learning. Whether we pass to halls of higher learning or face, at once, the sterner realizations of life, we shall be ever grateful for our training and achievements at Yoe High.

MARGIN OF SAFETY ON THE SPEEDWAY OR HIGHWAY

THOUSANDS said that tires could not stand the terrific grind. They said cars had been built with much greater speed, turns in the track had been repaved with granite-like surface, yet Wilbur Shaw drove to victory on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires setting a new record of 113.58 miles per hour on one of the hottest days in the history of the Indianapolis track.

Think of the terrific impact on these tires as the cars roared into the treacherous turns and out again. Tons of force straining, pulling, and twisting inside the tire, yet not one cord loosened, not one tread separated from the cord body—all because Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process, successfully counteracted the internal friction and heat that ordinarily destroy tire life.

You will never drive your car at these record-breaking speeds, but for the safety of yourself and family you need the safest, strongest and most dependable tires. Come in today. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires—the safest tires that money can buy.

“A Good Example”

No business or profession is without a code of ethics.

True, one cannot always detect this fact, by observing the conduct of those engaged in the business.

Every such code of ethics lends atmosphere that begets confidence. A code of ethics has no parallel in building prestige, and, if followed, will result in better business and better business men.

The Herald has ‘set a good example’ for others to follow. In doing so, it has not always fund financial profits. The Herald has always stood firm against abuse of ethics.

These abuses occur through ignorance, and, often selfishness.

Newspapers worthy of the name, never sell their news columns. Likewise they submit to no dictation. They never seize “excuses” to sell advertising nor withhold values they are obliged to give in exchange for money invested.

Cheap Merchandising . . . selling below cost of production as a competative weapon will destroy any city or any business. Has Cameron suffered through low standards?

Ethics as good society in business also may mean a profit as well.

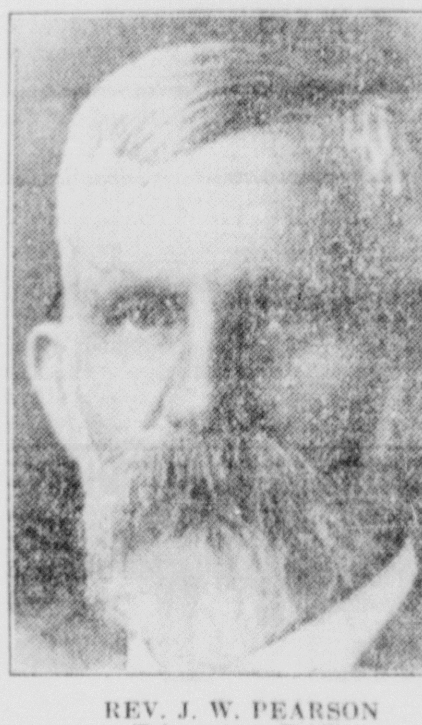
A Survivor Recalls Saddle-Bag Preaching

By MARJORIE ROGERS
Marlin, Texas.

(Copyright, 1937, by the Southwest Magazine Co.)

A SADDLE-bag preacher in the earliest days of Texas had to be a rugged individualist, with native ability to either preach or fight, as occasion demanded.



REV. J. W. PEARSON
Tehuacana, Texas.

He went by the nickname of "saddle-bag preacher" because he rode horseback through the country, carrying all his possessions in a saddle-bag and preaching to the pioneers in remote communities. He "rode a circuit" and his appearance, whether once a week or once a month, was a time of great rejoicing among the settlers.

In those days there were few resident preachers and few church buildings. But it made no difference to a saddle-bag preacher where he preached—if no church building he would preach in a school house; if no school house in a private home; or under a brush arbor, weather permitting.

Almost all of these old-time preachers have passed to their reward, but one of them is yet living—Rev. J. W. Pearson, of Tehuacana, Limestone county, Texas.

$50,000 Worth of Slaves

Rev. Pearson was born in Cusca county, Alabama, September 8, 1852. His mother died when he was quite young, and he and his brothers and sisters lived with their father, Zacharia Peter Pearson, and an uncle on a small farm.

"My uncle, a slave overseer, was called to the war between the States two years before my father," Rev. Pearson said. "Because my father was needed to look after crops in the neighborhood, he was not called until the last two years of the war. At that time he sent his children to homes of relatives or friends to live. I lived with a Dr. Kelly, a large plantation owner, who had about $50,000 worth of slaves on his plantation. I studied medicine with him. When the war was over my father worked for Dr. Kelly and helped him divide the livestock and the farm products with the negroes after they were freed. There was not much left of the livestock when the war ended, as the Yankee soldiers, in passing, took what they pleased. All that was left for Dr. Kelly to work his crops with were a blind mule and another crippled mule.

"Times were hard and so my father decided to hit the trail for Texas, where his brother, J. Wesley Pearson, lived in the country near Bryan. We left for Texas in 1869 by wagon, going to Montgomery, Alabama, where we took a train to Mobile, then a boat to New Orleans and Galveston."

Preachers Paid Small Salaries

From Galveston Rev. Pearson went to Bryan, on the Houston and Texas Central railway. He enrolled in Trinity University in Tehuacana, receiving his degree in 1883. On March 20, 1880, he was made a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, being one of the oldest living members in Texas. After receiving his diploma to preach he went to Georgetown and from there held protracted meetings around the country, but did not take any pastorate until 1884, when he was called to the Round Rock circuit, consisting of Round Rock, Hutto and Prairie Plains, Texas.

"In the days of my saddle-bag preaching, the yearly salaries of preachers ranged from about $250 to $400," Rev. Pearson said. "My work was done under the general auspices of the Little River Presbytery, of the Cumberland Church, and confined chiefly to Travis, Brazos and Williamson counties, Texas.

"In addition to the cash which I received, I was also given board and lodging, because I stayed with different families on my circuit during the week. I helped with the various chores around the homes of these people.

"Chicken was the most popular dish served by most families when a minister lodged with them. I ate so much chicken during the time I was a circuit preacher that it has been nearly fifty years since I have eaten any. I got enough chicken in those days to do me for the rest of my life."

In addition to his regular church preaching and revivals, Rev. Pearson officiated at most of the christenings, weddings and burials in communities he served.

Few Divorces

"It was not customary to charge a fee when marrying a couple, but the minister usually expected a gift of some sort," Rev. Pearson recalled. "The most unusual marriage fee I ever received was $10 at the conclusion of the service, and an annual gift of $5 from the groom for the next twenty-two years. There were few divorces among married couples in those early times. A divorcee lost social prestige.

"There being few roads and fewer bridges, I sometimes followed dim trails. Many creeks and rivers had to be forded. If swollen by rains, and no bridge, I swam the stream horseback or waited for it to subside.

"I was almost refused lodging one night because the family was about out of food, but finally the man relented and shared what he had with me. Contrary to popular belief, the people in those days did not always give free food and a night's lodging without pay. I have paid for these many times—usually 50 cents—but on the other hand I often enjoyed hospitality free."

The saddle-bag preacher did not get all of the collection at services he conducted, according to Rev. Pearson. Collections were all of a voluntary nature. There were no pledges, and no envelope system was used. At the close of each service, the preacher would announce that a collection would be taken, specifying the purpose for which the money was to be used. Offerings were taken for foreign missions, home missions and, occasionally when some family in the community had met with misfortune, the collections would be turned over to them. Only during camp-meetings in the summer was it taken for granted that all the proceeds of a collection would go for support of the preacher.

Harvest-Time for Soul-Saving

"Summer was the harvest-time for soul-saving," Rev. Pearson declared. "Men and women who had indulged in sin during the year, and were known as backsliders in the church, had their chance to be taken back into the fold during summer camp-meetings.

"The brush arbor was the accepted place of worship for the summer months. Along in spring when the first signs of permanent warm weather set in, the preacher would designate a day for each community to build its arbor. On the appointed day practically the entire population would gather at the place selected and spend the day in arbor-building. It was a real holiday. Women brought baskets of food for the men who did the work. The arbor consisted of a framework of poles covered over with brush, such as small limbs and twigs with leaves attached. The structure would be built in a day, but frequently repairs had to be made to the arbor from time to time as the brush dried out and broke away."

When congregations assembled under the brush arbor for a ten-day revival, camps were made around the arbor. Women cooked on fires in the open and served food on long clapboard scaffolds. Girls and boys courted, Civil War veterans discussed the war, and everyone had a good time.

Secret Prayer in Quiet Spots

Secret prayer was held in quiet spots after breakfast. At 10 o'clock the congregation assembled under the arbor for services which continued until noon. Dinner was served between noon and 2 o'clock with preaching starting again at 2 and lasting until 4. The evening services started at 7 and lasted until bedtime.

"All-day singings, square dances and parties made up most of the social life of communities I served," Rev. Pearson said. "The singing schools were usually held once a year, in the spring or summer. Some person in the community would organize the school, and the people of the community, generally the younger ones, would come about 9 o'clock in the morning and sing until late in the afternoon.

"Little was known of the finer points of music. The books used had seven different shapes for notes, representing the seven degrees of the scale. Round notes were not known to these teachers. The parts for singing were treble, tenor, counter and bass.

"I remember that the Sacred Harp, Temple Star and Christian Harmony song books were popular in the early days," Rev. Pearson said. "The class usually sat in a square, the teacher stood in the middle. He went from one group to another, bringing out the weaker voices. The teacher's chief accomplishment was his ability to sing any part in the music.

"I sometimes followed dim trails."

Back-Woods Singing Real Art

"At these singings people sang hard all day, stopping only for dinner at noon. Occasionally the singing schools of several communities met for competition. Backwoods singing was a real art."

All summer services were held under the brush arbor, but no such central location was used in the winter, Rev. Pearson explained.

"There were no regular churches for the saddle-bag preacher to use," he said. "We used school houses in most instances, but in some cases private homes were utilized. In the winter time we occasionally would miss a service because of extremely bad weather, but these occasions were few. We had no janitors; first person to arrive a cold morning where preaching was to be held built a fire and swept the floor."

Mr. Pearson has a great affection for the beautiful old town of Tehuacana.

First White Settler

"Major John Boyd was the first white settler of the Tehuacana Hills," he recalls. "He fought for Texas in the war with Mexico and was given a large land grant by the government in this part of the country. He gave money and 1,500 acres of land, and his nephew, Lynn Boyd, built the two-story eight-room frame building which was the beginning of Trinity University. As a result of his gift, Westminister College, a denominational school of the Presbyterian Church, opened its portals to two pupils in 1869. A hundred or more pupils attended later.

"Student preachers were invited out on Sunday to dine in private homes, but the young men and women were segregated. There were two sets of stairs in the building, one being used for the girls and one for boys as they were not allowed to walk together or sit by each other. There was a partition in the center of the chapel, and the boys sat on one side and the girls on the other. They could not leave the campus during school hours and could have no dates. The rules of the school were 'suspended' occasionally for a social gathering—boys and girls could they have dates. But our young folk were happy and enjoyed themselves, despite these social restrictions."

Texas Vacation Spots That Lure

By DICK HARVEY
Box 13, Alpine, Texas.

(Copyright, 1937, by the Southwest Magazine Co.)

EVERY now and then someone writes a sad bit of poetry or a sad bit of prose about the "vanishing frontier."

A relentless civilization, we are told, has robbed nature of its rugged beauty and stripped the old west of its mystery and enchantment.

But has it? Not that you can notice, at least, in one part of Texas.

A good car and a couple of tanks of gasoline will take the vacationist into the heart of the alluring Trans-Pecos country, that part of Texas better known as "West of the Pecos," where nature is still in the raw. Here are to be found the State's tallest mountains, deepest canyons, rarest metals and greatest profusion of plant and animal life.

Yet Texas, "West of the Pecos," is by no means an impassable jungle. Long ribbons of concrete and graveled highways form a network leading to this area and more highways are being built. Furthermore, scenic drives have been mapped and State parks have been developed as a tourist lure. Strangely enough, it is possible for the motorist to "rough it" in this picturesque section without much inconvenience.

A Colorful Legend

One of the many beautiful and romantic spots in the Trans-Pecos country is Los Chisos mountains. A scenic delight, unequalled anywhere, Los Chisos has the added charm of a colorful legend handed down for many generations—a legend that inspired the name, "Los Chisos," which means "The Ghosts." In early days a sort of haunting mystery veiled this rugged country and many a weary traveler who entered the mountain fastness is said never to have returned. To the superstitiously inclined the spirit of these vanished travelers is reflected in "Los Chisos."

The Trans-Pecos area embraces 31,591 square miles, a ninth part of Texas. Since much of its phenomena is due to land contour, it might be well to consider altitude. Embracing the southern extremity of the Rocky Mountain chain, elevation varies from 1,500 feet upward to the rugged crest of El Capitan, 8,751 feet above sea level, or perhaps to the brow of Mt. Emory, according to latest reports 7,835 feet high. The old Butterfield overland stage route to California passed near the foot of El Capitan and its old stage stand, now a crumbling adobe ruin, is located at Pine Spring, on the northern slope of the mountain.

The highest point of the Southern Pacific railroad between New Orleans and the West coast is in Pasiano Pass. The highest point of several State highways is in the same pass. To the north is the town of Fort Davis, loftiest town in Texas. It is one mile above sea level.

The scenic beauty of the area cannot be described in words. Plans to make a National park of 800,000 acres, where the Rio Grande river makes its sweeping bend, are well under way. Expectations are that the Mexican government will set aside 700,000 acres across the river to make it one big international playground.

2,000-Foot Gorge

The park would include the little explored Chisos mountains and three deep gorges of the Rio Grande, of which Santa Helena canyon is the deepest. At one point Santa Helena is a sheer drop of more than 2,000 feet from lip to river channel. Only the Grand Canyon, of Arizona, excels that depth in the United States. Recently Dr. Walter Prescott Webb, of Austin, consulting historian of the National Park Service, made the perilous trip in a steel-built rowboat through the narrow, swift rapids of Santa Helena gorge.

A section of the Chisos mountains in Big Bend.

The following quotation is from the report on the proposed Big Bend park area made by Conrad I. Wirth, assistant director of the National Park Service:

"The Chisos mountains comprise a biological island with forest trees and associate species of flora and fauna many miles removed from forest types of similar nature. The scenic, historical and scientific features of the area are strangely varied. Few, if any, of its qualities exist anywhere else in the National Park Service."

The largest county in the Trans-Pecos region, and in the State, is Brewster, area 5,935 square miles. Within its boundary is to be found one of the shortest State highways, No. 223, exactly one mile long. Also, there is Highway No. 227, 100 miles long, and said to be the longest State road entirely within one county. Soon to be extended 170 miles, No. 227 will not even then have crossed the county line.

The McDonald Observatory, atop Mt. Locke in Jeff-Davis county, is the second largest astronomical observatory in the world and is the property of the University of Texas. On clear days it can be seen from a distance of fifty miles. The county measures 2,263 square miles.

Wild Animals Abound

As to be expected in a country so rugged, wild animals abound. The only two herds of elk at large in the State are in Jeff Davis county—30 head are in the pastures of the Rockpile ranch and 150 head roam the Guadalupe mountains.

More than 4,500 antelope are in the Trans-Pecos area, a greater number, Game Warden Ray Williams believes, than inhabit the remainder of the State. There are 300 mountain sheep and a few Arizona fantail deer, both species native only to this section.

Other animals include black bear, blacktail and whitetail deer, wild hog, and three species of mountain lion. There are also numerous smaller animals, of which the otter is the most rare.

While planning vacations keep in mind this mountainous region of Texas. Here is scenery that rivals Arizona, Colorado or California.

If you don't like plains and mountains but prefer wooded areas, there is the "Big Thicket" in East Texas—comprising 2,000,000 acres—as primitive almost as in days of the Republic. Caddo Lake, half in Texas and half in Louisiana and the largest natural fresh water body in the State, is an enticing recreative spot. Or the Gulf shores in South Texas have a lure for vacation-seekers. There are few prettier places than along our Gulf shores from the mouth of the Sabine to the mouth of the Rio Grande.

Texas is a wonderland of natural beauty. So vacationists, young and old, if you plan a sight-seeing trip this summer, why leave Texas? Go places you have not been. Then you will be surprised and delighted with what you shall see in the matchless Lone Star State.

Forty-Fifth Legislature

By DON HOLLIS
P. O. Box 741, Tyler Texas.

THE regular session of the Forty-fifth Texas Legislature, ending May 22nd, enacted more than 500 measures—touching, among other things, on the liquor and narcotic laws, highway safety, oil proration, retirement of public school teachers, soil conservation and rural electrification.

In addition, the legislature authorized the submission of seven proposed constitutional amendments. Six of these will be voted upon at a special election, August 23, and the seventh at the general election in 1938.

There were 1706 bills offered during the session—118 in the House and 518 in the Senate. This is believed to have set a record in volume of bills. More than half of the measures were local, dealing mostly with fish and game laws.

There were seventy joint resolutions—53 in the House and 17 in the Senate—proposing constitutional amendments.

At no session of the legislature within recent years has the Governor exercised the power of veto so freely. He not only vetoed the joint rules of the House and Senate, but he disapproved of over a dozen measures including a number of appropriation bills. Several unsuccessful attempts were made to over-ride the Governor's veto.

Biennial Budget Boosted

Just before the regular session closed, legislators approved appropriations for State departments and educational institutions which boosted the biennial budget considerably above that of the current two years. The educational bill calls for a total of $16,657,000—an increase of approximately $5,800,000 over current allotments. The departmental bill of $24,308,221 represents an increase of nearly $2,000,000. Previously the House had adopted conference reports appropriating $4,951,130 for the judiciary, compared with $4,456,021 currently provided, and $14,131,615 for eleemosynary institutions, compared with $11,777,061 for the current biennium.

Friction developed early in the session between the Governor and the legislature over repeal of pari-mutuel gambling law, which brought on an impasse or fillibuster and, as a result, just before adjournment Allred issued a call for a special session for Thursday, May 27, to consider one question—race track betting.

Another bone of contention between the Governor and the legislature was the subject of additional revenue. At the beginning of the session the Governor pointed out that millions were needed in the form of new taxes to bolster the State's financial condition. Four revenue bills, calling for increased taxes on natural gas, oil, sulphur and corporation franchises, were passed by the House but smothered in Senate committees. The obviously essential issue of raising money must

Dust Storms and Land Fertility

EARLY in April there was a deep snow in Iowa; before it melted there was a dust storm further south. The wind diminished in speed when it reached Iowa and deposited much of its dust on top of the snow—about 200 pounds to the acre. A government chemist who examined this dust found it exceedingly rich in elements essential to the growth of plants.

As high winds blow over dry loose earth some of the soil, picked up, is later deposited by gentle winds. A stiff breeze will pick up and carry along sand, and even small pebbles, but drops them in lulls of the wind. Thus loose fertile soil is carried away never to return. So the fertility of the land in the "Dust Bowl" is being reduced from year to year—a fact so evident it does not escape any careful observer. It is good, however, to have scientists point out the extent of the loss due to wind erosion.

What are we going to do about it? Our government is advising that we allow land in the "Dust Bowl" to go back to grass. It says, very truly, that land sodded to grass is not so subject to erosion by wind as is cultivated land. While this fails to entirely solve the problem, yet it is probably about all we can do at present.

Dr. Waldo R. Wedel, of the Smithsonian Institution, tells us that there was a dust bowl before Columbus landed in America, and that primitive man was beaten by it. His researches show that several centuries ago a farming people settled in Nebraska, Kansas and on the plains along the eastern edge of the Rockies. This people was probably the ancestors of our Pawnee Indians. Dr. Wedel has discovered the ruins of their villages, dating back perhaps 800 years. Sand to the depth of one to five feet now covers the sites of these villages and indications are that it was deposited by dust storms. The relics show that these people had to abandon farming. At this time they had also long periods of drouth, as indicated by tree rings.

The same natural forces are now at work, and may compel our farmers in the "Dust Bowl" to give up the growing of wheat, to sod their land in grass and become a stock-raising rather than an agricultural people.

Income of Texas

The National Industrial Conference Board has made a survey showing the income of every State for the year of 1929, 1933 and 1935. In the year 1935 Texas income ranked ninth among the States, with a total of $1,919,000,000, or about $325 for every man, woman and child in the State. This is much more than the income of 1933, which was $1,608,000,000, and considerably less than the income for 1929, $2,625,000,000.

The principal sources of income in Texas were cotton and oil. Much of the income of Texas—a large part of the income from oil, gas, sulphur, utilities, etc.—went to people living in other States; so the figure of $325 per person will have to be drastically reduced to show the true figure.

Of the States south of the Potomac and Ohio and west of the Mississippi rivers, only California, with an income of $3,681,000,000, exceeded Texas. In explanation it may be said that California has sought new industries, including tourists, and her business men have organized many companies to market her vegetables and fruits under the most favorable circumstances, excelling Texas in this respect.

In 1935 New York had an income of $9,019,000,000, to be divided among her 12,588,066 people as given by the census of 1930. All States south of the Potomac and Ohio rivers, including Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Texas, had an income of $9,778,000,000, with a population of 32,886,269, thus making the average income $298. That of the New Yorker was $716, or 2.4 times as much. It should also be kept in mind that much should be substracted from the Southerner's income and added to that of the New Yorker, due to the fact that the New Yorker receives a generous portion of the income assigned to the Southern States.

These figures give us cause for reflection. We all know that the per capita wealth in New York is much greater than in the South. This will explain the difference in part, but only in part. What are the other reasons? Are the natural resources of New York greater than those of the South? No. The South is much richer in resources. Does the New Yorker have greater intelligence and ability than the Southerner? Does he work longer hours? If so, no one should object to his having a greater share of the income. But the cause lies far deeper. Is it due to our economic system, making industry profitable at the expense of agriculture? If this be true, we can do little for immediate correction of the system, but we should do that little. Such remedies for our low income should receive earnest and thoughtful attention. We have local pride and patriotism that would wish for our people as great remuneration for their work and, consequently, as high a standard of living, as are enjoyed by any other State.

Happenings in Threes

Recently within a period of a few days three Texans drove into moving railroad trains. According to the accounts in newspapers, the trains were in plain view and the drivers approached them at right angles. In one instance, at least, the driver knew that the train might be expected along about that time, and on other days had stopped to let this train pass.

We wonder why disasters of this kind and other kind come in groups of three? For many years I was principal of a high school. At times we would go for months, even years, without a fight between the boys on the school ground. When we did have one, I learned to expect two others, and then for fighting to stop. So far as we recall, our expectations failed in only one instance. Why should three pairs of boys, after living with each other in peace for a long time, suddenly decide to settle their differences by fighting? Why should three sensible men within the space of a week get to day-dreaming and drive into moving trains? Or why do train wrecks often follow in threes? It is a fact that a railroad will operate passenger trains over a period of years without a wreck. Then a crack train goes in the ditch. In a little while another crack train is wrecked—and finally a third. All of which may be an incident. But it makes us wonder whether we are just a little superstitious, or whether these things have underlying causes.

The Northern Press and Mob Law

Whose ox is gored seems to make a great difference to metropolitan dailies in the North so far as mob law is concerned.

The horrible lynching in Mississippi of two negroes charged with murder set off the editors of these dailies into their usual tirades against lynchings in the South, although the majority of Southerners are as much opposed to lynching as the majority of Northerners.

A short while after the lynching in Mississippi a mob of farmers, furnishing milk to a candy factory in Pennsylvania, assembled to discuss a sit-down strike in the candy factory. However illegal a sit-down strike may be, it does not compare in gravity with the crime of murder. But this particular sit-down strike interferred with the business of these farmers. With clubs, baseball bats, and other weapons, they charged the strikers, cracking their skulls, breaking their bones, and otherwise beating them up.

What was the reaction of the Northern editors to this mobbing of candy factory workers? So far as we know, it did not disturb their serenity in the least. Some even wrote editorials condoning the attackers. The beams in the eyes of Northern editors should be removed before trying to remove the motes from the eyes of Southerners.

Uncertainty of Life

We are reminded of the uncertainty of life when we read that 80,200 persons who had held life insurance less than one year died in 1936. One-fourth of this number were between the ages of 40 and 49; one-fifth, between 30 and 39; the others were divided almost equally between groups of 50 to 59, 20 to 29, and below 20.

The doctors employed by insurance companies had given these people rigid physical examinations, had pronounced them sound in body and in good health, with expectation of longer life than the average person.

As to causes of the deaths of these 80,200 people, we find that accidents accounted for about one-third, automobile accidents heading the list. The next greatest cause was influenza and pneumonia, followed closely by heart disease.

Persons of every occupation were included and no class exempted.

Zeppelins

For thirty years Germany has been building and operating airships. To date she has built 129 and the first one, carrying passengers, to meet with a major disaster was the Hindenberg, which recently caught fire and exploded at the Lakehurst, N. J., airport, with a loss of 35 lives.

The cause of the loss of the Hindenburg, according to the theory of Dr. Hugo Eckner, master German builder and operator of Zeppelins, was a static spark, igniting free hydrogen gas that had escaped in the rear of the airship. The Germans inflate their ships with hydrogen gas, the lightest and most inflammable of gas. After the destruction of the Shenandoah our scientists began search for a lighter non-inflammable gas, and found it in helium, which in small proportions is mingled with the natural gas from some of our Texas and Oklahoma wells. It has about 92 per cent of the lifting power of hydrogen. Our government has been extracting it from natural gas at a plant near Amarillo and hitherto has refused to sell it to other nations, but it is probable that, due to the destruction of the Hindenburg, we shall hereafter let other nations have helium for passenger dirigibles. It costs about $75,000 to inflate a large dirigible with helium gas.

Perhaps the most famous dirigible of all time is the Graf Zeppelin, built by Germany and still in active service between Germany and Brazil. It has circumnavigated the globe, and has flown in all about 750,000 miles.

Many Zeppelins took part in the World War, causing England no end of trouble. The property damage inflicted by the ships was not great, but at least 1,000 English lives were lost through Zeppelin raids, which kept France and England in terror throughout the war.

After the World War both England and the United States began the construction of Zeppelins for war purposes. Whether due to faulty design, poor construction or other causes, the experience of these two countries has been far from satisfactory. The United States has lost three big dirigibles—the Shenandoah, the Akron and the Macon. England lost the R-101 and France the Dixmude.

The inventor of this kind of aircraft was Ferdinand Zeppelin, a German. He served as a volunteer in the Federal army during our Civil War, and at this time made his first balloon ascent. He later saw service with the Prussian army in the War with Austria, 1866, and the Franco-Prussian war, 1870-1871. He retired from the army with the rank of general in 1891, and thenceforth devoted himself to aeronautics. His first airship, completed in 1900, rose from the ground and remained in the air twenty minutes, but was wrecked on landing. His first successful flight was in 1906, when his ship attained a speed of thirty miles an hour. From that time until today, airship construction has made steady progress. Count Zeppelin died in 1923.

The Hindenburg's cruising radius was 8,500 miles and it had made many successful trips across the Atlantic from Germany to America.

Our Denominational Colleges

The denominational and private colleges and academies are an asset to the State in taxes they save for higher education of our boys and girls.

In 1935 there were 25,473 students in our State colleges, junior and senior. In the nineteen private and denominational colleges, authorized to confer degrees, there were 15,616 students who were candidates for degrees; in the junior denominational colleges approximately 6,000 were enrolled. These do not include pupils in business colleges, academies, and private or denominational high schools. All the figures above apply only to pupils enrolled in the regular session, and not to summer school pupils and to those taking courses by correspondence. Nearly one-half of our college pupils are in private or denominational institutions.

This means a saving to the State in two ways. First, in buildings and equipment. Just how much we have invested in buildings, libraries, laboratories, gymnasia, etc. at our State institutions we do not know, but it is millions. Without cost to the State denominational colleges provide these things for nearly one-half of our pupils now enrolled in colleges. In justice it should be said that the State does make a very real contribution to denominational colleges by exempting their property from taxation. As these colleges are chartered and relieved of taxation by the State, they are to a degree State institutions.

The second way in which the denominational colleges save the State money is by neither asking nor receiving from the State money for current expenses. For the fiscal year ending August 31, 1933, our State institutions received $5,262,384.39. Since that time there has been an increase in enrollment and in appropriations.

Without the denominational college it would be almost impossible to provide facilities for all who desire college education. If we had the same accommodations in State institutions we should have to raise additional millions every year for education. Financially, and otherwise, the denominational college is making a real contribution to our general welfare.

But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name. John 1:12.

Grass Root Reveries

PROSPERITY surely must be just around the corner for we are having a bumper crop of June brides.

An officer, raiding a moonshine still, accidently spilled some of the stuff on his wrist watch and since then the watch has gained twenty minutes a day.

Some one claims to have made the discovery that fish are subject to spells of sea-sickness. Now we know why they didn't bite the last time we went fishing.

This is the time of year when bees are swarming. An apiarist says bees are harmless when they park on you if you keep still and don't molest them. But how can one keep still after a bee parks on the seat of the pants or some other vulnerable part of the anatomy.

Isn't it surprising how quickly long lost relatives appear when an announcement is made that a large estate is about to be divided.

A noted writer says many fine stories have never been finished "because the author could not frame a proper take off." In other words, the author just cracked up.

A famous aviator says man has learned more about flying in twenty years than birds ever did or ever will know. Maybe so, but birds don't suddenly fall to the ground and get killed while flying, nor crash headlong into the side of a mountain. And the first bird could fly, but man was here 6,000 years before he could fly 200 yards.

"Maybe we'll live to see hoopskirts and bustles."

There is some argument as to the kind of tree Judas Iscariot hanged himself on. What difference does it make so long as the tree did a good job.

Astronomers claim the moon is dead and that our own earth will be as dead as the moon a billion years hence. Why bother about a little thing like a billion years hence? Let's balance the budget.

If the government will give every car owner a trailer the low housing cost problem will soon be solved.

An architect says the State capitol at Austin is about to collapse. Considering what it has had to endure the past 50 years we think it stands up pretty well.

When a man tells you he doesn't care for the grass your cow eats when she gets over into his pasture, or the wood you cut off his land, or the wheat you thresh out of his field—then we'll have what socialists, facists and communists are looking for.

Once upon a time people believed the way to settle a dispute was for both sides to sit down together and talk it over. Now they try to settle a dispute with just one side sitting down.

We predict that if people who favor daylight saving time had to follow a mule and plow fourteen hours a day through these long hot days they wouldn't care a dern about saving daylight.

In a drug store recently we heard a man call for a contraption that goes on an automobile. And in a store that specializes in sport goods the clerk tried to sell us the latest in summer underwear. If business keeps on getting mixed up, some day you can walk into a ladies' ready-to-wear shop and buy castor oil.

A dollar bill is said to last nine months, but a dollar bill lasts this writer about nine minutes.

A lady insisted that her little son, age six, eat certain foods in order to obtain the required amount of calories. He told playmates he had to eat these foods to keep from having the colic.

A style expert predicts the return of old-fashioned collars and cuffs. We are glad some old-fashioned things are returning. Maybe we'll live to see hoopskirts and bustles.

People used to long to inherit the earth, but if taxes keep piling up it will bankrupt any man to own the earth.

Current events happen so fast we are losing sight of some of our cherished traditions. In trying to keep up with the present we get behind with the past. In trying to figure out the future we get no further than the monthly installments on the old car.

A preacher in Colorado was fined for speeding. Probably he was just trying to keep up with his congregation.

A judge upheld the right of parents to spank children. We are glad somebody has found out that parents have rights.

As evidence that a certain amount of prosperity has returned to folks living in wide open spaces is the wild berry crop, almost the best in East Texas history. If you want to enjoy a meal where they have plenty of jelly and jam pick out an old woman who has lots of scratches on her arms and legs—she has got the berries. That is why so many of us live so hard—we are not scratched up enough. It takes lots of scratches these days to make ends meet.

REPRODUCTION OF TEXAS' FIRST MISSION

Recent controversy over the route taken by Robert LaSalle, French explorer, in his ill-fated expedition to find the Mississippi river, has focused attention on another historic spot in East Texas—the site of the Tejas Indian village in Houston county. LaSalle, according to E. W. Cole, Cherokee county historian, passed near this Indian village shortly before his assassination near Alto. Other historians have contended that LaSalle was slain near Navasota.

It was in the center of the Tejas Indian village that the first Spanish mission in Texas was built in 1690—three years after LaSalle's death. The mission, known as San Francisco de Los Tejas, was of log construction and abandoned after three years. In time the mission building and all traces of the village disappeared and not until about five years ago was the site of the settlement determined. Two years ago a reproduction of the old mission was erected and the surrounding grounds converted into a park.

The site of Tejas village is about a mile north of the town of Weches (Houston county), just off Highway 21.

Fish teeth, estimated 50,000,000 years old, were dug from the limestone at Possum Hollow near Stephenville recently by a group of geology students under direction of S. F. Davis, head of the chemistry department at John Tarleton College. The area in which Possum Hollow and Stephenville are located once was submerged, Davis says, and a seaway extended from the Gulf of Mexico across a large part of Texas as well as other States. The limestone formation of the hollow, in which the teeth were found, was laid down during the lower cretaceous period.

What is believed to be a world turtle-catching record was established at Aransas Pass when Francis Roberts and "Swede" Swanson landed a trunk-back turtle weighing 900 pounds on tarpon tackle—9-thread line and 9-oz. rod. The turtle, 7 feet long and 7 feet 6 inches across, towed the anglers four miles to sea before its capture.

EAST TEXAS TIMBER SURVEY

A survey shows that the East Texas' commercial timber belt covers 12,500,000 acres, of which 10,000,000 are in pine and the rest in hardwood. About 80,000 acres are in virgin pine, the remainder ranging from cutover land that is not restocking to young second-growth timber eight inches in diameter and up.

An ordinary pine tree is said to increase its diameter one-fourth of an inch a year. At that rate it takes almost fifty years to grow a pine tree one foot in diameter.

Forty-Fifth Legislature

be considered, of course, at a later date.

Sales Tax Issue

The sales tax issue bobbed up again. It was hoped to finance the State's social welfare activities with this proposed source of revenue. When the original plan failed, its backers proposed a constitutional amendment levying a sales tax to pay old age assistance grants alone, and introduced a resolution to that effect, but support was lacking and the project abandoned.

Highlights of the legislative accomplishments for the session just closed are summarized as follows:

The proposed diversion of 6 cents of the 35 cents levied for the general fund to fight soil erosion. This will amount to a diversion of $1,500,000 a year for the next ten years. Federal aid also is anticipated. The measure, awaiting signature of the Governor, designates the county as the unit for conservation districts.

A new drivers' license law which calls for the examination, by State Department of Public Safety representatives, of every applicant for a license in the applicant's home county or where he may apply. The applicant's examination includes a test of eyesight, ability to read and understand highway signs regulating, warning and directing traffic, knowledge of traffic rules of the State and an actual demonstration of ability to drive a motor car.

Extension of the State's oil proration or conservation laws for another two years. This action sets the expiration date up to September 1, 1939.

Establishment of a program whereby the State will match teachers' assessments for the creation of a retirement fund. All teachers who do not make written requests for exemption by the end of the year will become members. The teacher-member will contribute five per cent of his or her salary and the State will make a similar contribution. Each teacher also is assessed $1 a year for administrative purposes. Retirement is optional at the age of 60 and mandatory at 70 unless the employer permits continued service.

More Rigid Control of Liquor

More rigid control of the liquor traffic by granting the State broader powers in injunctions and giving liquor agents State-wide police powers with authority to carry guns.

Enactment of the uniform narcotics act now in effect in about half of the States of the Union.

Establishment of a relief and retirement program for firemen and the fixing of minimum wages for firemen and policemen, graded according to populations.

Establishment of an elaborate program for the formation and conduct of rural electrification co-operative corporations.

Increase in the salaries of judges of the State Supreme Court and the Court of Criminal Appeals to $8,000 a year; commission of appeal judges to $7,500 a year; civil appeals court judges to $6,500 and district judges to $5,000.

Among the more important measures blocked by the Governor's veto were:

The pardon and parole bill, which, through constitutional amendment, would drastically limit the Governor's clemency powers.

The truck bill, designed to exempt merchant-owned trucks from contract-carrier regulations.

A bill to authorize the purchase of part of Padre Island for park purposes.

A bill appropriating $817,000 for a new hospital for the insane in East Texas.

The amendments which are to be submitted to a vote at the special election in August would provide for:

Discounts for the prompt payment of taxes.

Elimination of double liability for stockholders in State banks.

Authorization for Harris county to call an election for the levying of taxes for a road plan.

State aid for the needy blind, not to exceed $15 a month.

State aid for dependent children up to $8 a month for one child, $12 for a family and $1,500,000 for the entire State.

Authorization for the legislature to provide for remuneration of county officials. This amendment seeks the return to the fee system and the abolition of the salary plan adopted two years ago.

Alteration of the constitutional oath to eliminate the archaic "duelling" clause. This amendment will be voted upon at the general election.

MODESTY BECOMETH A MAID

In this age of "machinery" and "specialists," women are filling a new place in history. Never before since the creation, when good old Eve ate the apple, have women been so frequently in the headlines.

With this recognition, has come a new and fuller responsibility. No longer does woman merely rock the cradle, but she drives the car and runs the family budget. Long ago the status of a woman depended upon the man who "chose" to make her his wife. She was either a petted darling—or a household slave.

Today womankind, for the most part, chooses the role which she will play in life.

Women owe it to themselves and to their families to be both capable and charming. Regardless of what position she may hold, she should study and constantly work to inform herself of the most efficient way to handle her job. This job may be anything from a great executive to the manager of the most humble home. In whatever place she may find herself, however—she is still a woman.

It has been truly said, "Judy O'Grady and the Captain's Lady are sisters under the skin."

Show me a woman who does not instinctively hold out her arms and smile with happiness whenever she beholds a tiny baby, and I will show you a walking collection of human atoms without a heart. Nature has endowed each feminine heart with that spark of motherhood that embraces and beautifies the world. God pity us if it ever fails.

In every nation and every clime, motherhood is the controlling factor.

Standing on the threshold of womanhood this month, are thousands of young women who will go out to help make the world a better place in which to live, or an inferno. This is because no man can rise to the highest of achievement, or sink to depths of despair, as completely as a woman. Great is the responsibility of these young people, and how fraught with danger is their path. Would that we might place some sign posts along the road of life—but alas, each must blaze the trail alone.

As each young woman sets her bark adrift upon the waters of life, she asks, "What will aid me best in the battle of life?"

We hear today, lengthy and sometimes very helpful, talks on "charm." This is an attribute much to be desired, yet so few really possess it. We are told how to care for the skin, the the hair, the proper foods to eat, the correct manners for all occasions, and about numerous other charming accomplishments. These we should all strive to attain. Yet with all the correctness of manner, no person is really charming unless that charm comes from within.

"Who can find a virtuous woman—for her price is far above rubies." (Prov. 31:10).

May I suggest that you look up the meaning of virtuous in your dictionary. You will be surprised at the definition. You will discover that to be virtuous you must be modest. This will bring up the question of what is modesty. If we are to take the word of some of the greatest men that ever lived, we will find modesty is that characteristic which makes one thoughtful of others, yet never boldly aggressive at any time.

In the following poem it is well described:

THE HAPPIEST HEART

Who drives the horses of the sun
Shall Lord it but a day,
Better the lowly deed were done
And keep the humble way.

The rust will find the sword of fame,
The dust will hide the crown;
Aye, none shall hail so high his name
That time will not tear down.

The happiest heart that ever beat
Was in some quiet breast—
Who found the common daylight sweet,
And left to Heaven the rest.

—John Vance Cheney.

Every girl desires a happy heart above all else. When she has attained that desired attribute, she will realize that modesty has played a large part in her life.

Of course we all know that modesty starts with the adornment and arrangement of wearing apparel. It was with great satisfaction and extreme pleasure that I listened to the talks given at a recent convention of beauty experts. Every single noted speaker stressed modest, becoming clothes, simple hair arrangements, and frowned greatly on any loud or distasteful accessories. With one accord, these leaders in beauty culture advised women to seek natural beauty. Regardless of how extravagantly a woman is gowned, if she lacks modesty in looks and manner, she has lost half of her attractiveness.

So to the girls who are going forth to take their places in the battle line of life, let me suggest: "Remember MODESTY is one of your chief charms for a successful life."

"Modesty Becometh a Maid."

CANNING TIME AGAIN

With the advent of June, we hear the happy hum of the busy household, as it begins to plan for the winter we know will surely come.

Very rapidly the great Southwest is taking the lead in food preserving methods, and quantity of food-stuff preserved for winter use. We should all be very grateful to our county agents and home demonstration agents for the fine work they have done in helping to teach people about canning. The following are some very delightful recipes which I am sure will add variety to your menu:

Strawberry Preserves

9 cups sugar, 2 heaping quarts strawberries, 1 cup water.

Wash and hull strawberries before measuring. Put sugar and water into large preserving kettle; stir and boil until sugar is well dissolved. Add the strawberries. Boil 15 minutes (rolling boil). Do not stir, but shake kettle and skim. Pour into flat pans or trays, and shake occasionally until cold. The shaking is the secret of sucess. It causes the berries to absorb the syrup and remain plump and whole. Put into sterilized jars when cold. Cover with paraffin and fitted top. Never cook more than 2 quarts at a time. It is best to shake all the time while cooking and cooling.

Ice Water Pickles

Six pounds medium size cucumbers (each cut in 4 to 8 pieces according to size of cucumber). Soak in ice water 3 hours—drain, pack into sterlized jars. Add 6 pickling onions, 1 piece celery, 1 teaspoon mustard seed to each jar.

Prepare following solution:

3 quarts white vinegar, 3 cups supar, 1 cup salt.

Bring to boil, pour over cucumbers and seal jars. This makes six quarts.

Pineapple—Sliced

Peel pineapple, remove eyes, slice and core. Pre-cook in No. 2 syrup 5 to 10 minutes. Then pack into clean jars and fill to within 1½ inches of top with syrup. Put on cap, fastening as directed. Process in hot water 30 minutes, or oven 90 minutes at 250 degrees, or in pressure cooker 15 minutes at 5 pounds.

Melon Balls

Due to the fact that there is considerable moisture in melons, in order to keep them from floating after being canned, cut melon balls with a fancy cutter, drop them into a light boiling syrup, and let stand until cold. Pack into clean jars, pour syrup over them, adding one teaspoon lemon juice, and process in water bath 30 minutes; or pressure cooker 10 minutes at 5 pounds. Melons must not be over-ripe.

No. 2 Syrup

Use two parts of water to one part of sugar, and bring to a boil for this syrup.

GOOD RECIPES

The following are some recipes that will add zest to the summer meal, and are easy to prepare, and oh! so good:

Fig Luncheon Muffins

½ cup sugar
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons molasses
1 egg
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon allspice
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup cooking figs
½ cup milk.

Boil figs ten minutes, drain, clip stems and chop. Cream shortening with sugar then add beaten eggs, molasses and milk. Combine with flour, to which all other dry ingredients have been added, and stir until smooth. Add figs, beat well, then mix in crumbs and pour into greased muffin pans. Bake 15 minutes in moderate oven (350 Fahrenheit).

Military Punch

Grate the rind from an orange into a large pitcher. Add 4 tablespoons of sugar or to suit taste. Make 1 quart of tea (double strength) and pour as hot as possible over orange rind. Add the strained juice of 2 lemons, and leave all to get quite cold. Slice the orange thin, (taking care that all the white part of the skin is removed) and put the slices into a glass pitcher.

Pour the liquid, well strained, over them and serve very cold over chipped ice.

Asparagus With Eggs

Place asparagus tips in a baking dish. Beat four eggs until light; add to them two tablespoons of butter and a teaspoon of salt. Pour this over the asparagus, and put it in the oven for two or three minues. Serve on hot toast.

Spanish Hamburger

To 1 package of boiled macaroni add 1½ pounds hamburger meat, 1 can tomatoes, 3 slices onion, and season with salt and peppers. Mix all together thoroughly. Mould and place in a baking dish. Pour one can vegetable or tomato soup over this, and bake in moderate oven 30 minutes or until done.

MAKING THE HOUSE SUMMERY

Time to discard all "heavies" and to dress the house for warm weather. To summerize it, put away all useless articles. A crowded room is stuffy. Open spaces look cool and give access to ventilating breezes. Pack away velour drapes and shove into the background the overstuffed furniture. Bring into prominent positions cool looking things: fibre furniture, palm leaf fans and the lemonade pitcher.

Incline not my heart to any evil thing, to practice wicked works with men that work iniquity: and let me not eat of their dainties. Psalm 141:4.

TAXES FROM BIRTH TO DEATH

Tracing the tax burden of the average man from the cradle to the grave, beginning with soap for the baby's skin to the postmortem levy of his estate, the Twentieth Century Funds, a non-political institution, estimates the total at $12,500,000,000 (Federal, State and local governments) as follows:

For soap and tooth cleansers, $4,530,000 a year.

For medicine, 172 hidden taxes.

For milk and wheat—the twin staffs of life—more taxes for the consumer than profits for the farmer, the institute states.

For meat, 11c tax on a 40c roast.

For bread, fifty-three taxes totaling 2c a loaf.

For shoes, 112 hidden taxes.

For rent, 30c on every dollar.

For a train ride, $3 on a $10 ticket.

For liquor, 85 per cent of the retail price.

For cigarettes, 6c a pack.

For theater tickets, 10c on every dollar.

For tennis racquets or golf clubs, 1c in every 10c.

For death, 157 hidden taxes.

And that doesn't include your inheritance tax.

MUMMIES OF THE PHARAOHS

Visitors to Egyptian museums may be taking a last look at the mummies of the Pharaohs. Over a period of years mummies of most of the great ancient kings have been found, exhibited all over Egypt.

Now the feeling is growing that taking them from their tombs has brought bad luck to the country of the Nile. So probably they will be placed in a mausoleum near Gizeh, site of the famous pyramid of Cheops.

When the Pharaohs were originally entombed, the Egyptians cannily took great pains to foil grave robbers. Every tomb had at least two chambers. In one was a dummy of the king. The real mummy was concealed in a secret, sealed chamber.

Though this precaution led astray Egypt's conquerors who sought the wealth of gold and precious stones hidden in burial chambers, it did not stop archeologists.

England's Sir H. W. Flinders-Petrie made the first tomb excavations in 1883 and even he at first had trouble with the dummy decoys.

ELECTROCUTING THE GARS

The garfish that go to spawn in Lake Caddo, La., this spring are getting a warm reception. The State has strung in the water electric wires from a nearby powerhouse. A "gar" brushes the wire, and is electrocuted.

That's no worse than this needle-nosed underwater villain deserves. Man has two grievances against gars. They ruin fishing nets, kill other fish, not just for food, but often in sheer viciousness.

Even when killing to eat, the gar is wasteful. If it bites a fish in half, it eats only part of the fish.

TEXAS FARM NEWS REPORTS

Five cars of tomatoes were shipped in one day from the Rio Grande Valley.

The 28th annual session of the summer cotton school at A. & M. College will be held from June 8th through July 17th. The department also will sponsor three short courses for ginners in cotton grading and stapling.

More than 100 farmers have entered the pasture improvement contest at Kaufman, carrying a prize of $100.00 for the winner. The building of trench silos and the planting of better staple cotton are two phases being sponsored.

Farmer bankruptcies in Texas decreased 2.2 per cent in 1936 compared with the fiscal year of 1935. Bankruptcies dropped from 181 during 1935 to 177 during the year 1936, according to the Department of Agriculture.

A $300 college scholarship has been awarded Ruth Forshee, of Jacobia (Hunt county), for being the highest ranking 4-H club girl in Texas. Her activities included gardening, sewing and food preparation.

Two Texans, Burris Jackson, Hillsboro postmaster and chairman of the cotton improvement committee of the Texas Cotton Association, and L. T. Murray, of Waco, general manager, suggested to the Agriculture Department at Washington that it assume control of the distribution of pedigreed cotton seed to reduce its exportation. "Fully 35 per cent of the high grade seed produced each year in Texas leaves the country," said Murray and Jackson, "with the result that our yield has been hurt on the world market."

Federal funds to the extent of $450,000 are to be sought through the Texas Department of Agriculture to battle the Mexican fruit fly, a growing threat to the Valley's citrus industry, during the coming year, J. M. Del Curto, State entomologist, has announced. A new tartar emitic spray, developed at the United States Department of Agriculture laboratory in Mexico City, will be used, if finances are provided.

Winona Schultz, Bastrop county, and Walter Britten, Carson county, represented Texas 4-H club girls and boys as part of the 4-H club series of National Farm and Home Hour broadcast, June 5, in Chicago. During her eight years of club work, Miss Schultz has completed work valued at $1,910.25 with an expenditure of $412.46. Britten won the $275.00 scholarship for leadership offered to 4-H club boys in 1937.

Only three Texas cows reacted to the tuberculin tests given by United States and State inspectors during March, out of 10,590 cattle examined, the Department of Agriculture has announced. Texas ranks first of all the States in number of cattle examined and declared free from the disease, with a total of 3,512,179. Throughout the State there are 4,602,892 cattle under the active supervision of the inspectors.

A hardy group of 431 farmers, blown out of hard hit dust bowl areas in Texas and Oklahoma two years ago and subsequently devastated by flood and tornado, were cheered when the Resettlement Administration announced adjustment of their debts. "Dust bowlers" have received a flat reduction of 20 per cent on the original purchase price of their land. All delinquent interest was canceled, the interest rate reduced from 6 per cent, and cancellation was obtained of the delinquent water rents up to last July 1st.

Coleman county has been producing turkey eggs at a rate of 40 cases per week.

A head of cabbage grown by Mrs. L. Dorsey, of Palacios, weighed 14 pounds and 6 ounces. The cabbage was firm and sweet.

Sixty-five farmers in and around Salado (Bell county) are organizing a one-variety cotton gin as the first move toward standardization of cotton production in that community.

Leading the entire nation in production of wool, Texas annually pays $750,000 to get its wool to Eastern markets. For this reason a drive is on to locate wool plants in Texas.

A hen owned by C. J. Marbut, of Port Arthur, laid an egg which measured 6¼ inches by 7⅞ inches and weighed an even four ounces. The hen is a 2-year old White Leghorn.

An estimated 1,000 acres have been planted to cantaloupes in the Laredo region since January, and marketing is expected to begin late in May. Conditions of the plants indicate a yield of 250 carloads.

Austrian winter peas, grown on the farm of Joe Bauer, two miles west of Gainesville, have proved to be a good soil builder and pasture grazer. The foliage is luxuriant and tender and livestock relish it as feed. The peas are not good for human consumption.

The annual report of the agricultural engineer of the Texas Extension Service reveals that 2,338,418 acres were terraced or contoured under the supervision of Texas county agricultural agents during 1936. The largest previous number of acres so protected against erosion in any one year was 1,031,888 acres in 1931.

County agents are congratulating farmers who stored feed in trench silos last year since the price of all feed stuff has sky-rocketed.

Between 40 and 50 carloads of peas are expected to be shipped from Mineola (Wood county) the coming season. A warehouse and plant for cleaning, packing and fumigating peas is to be built in Mineola.

Paul Johnson, Uvalde produce dealer, claims a record for hatching double eggs. While candling eggs, which had been brought to his store, Johnson selected 10 with double yolks and placed them in an incubator. Nineteen chicks were hatched from the 10 double yolks.

Favorable results obtained by 10 farmers of San Augustine county, who planted soy beans for feeding purposes in 1936, have influenced 181 farmers of this county to decide to try this plan for the 1937 season, according to W. L. Knapp, county agricultural agent.

Canning in small containers and canning many varieties of vegetables, fruits and meats make the products easier to use and more practicable, according to Mrs. A. J. Roberson, farm food supply demonstrator for the Home-Makers-Home Demonstration Club at Edinburg.

The high price of feed was blamed for the smallest poultry crop in the United States in 20 years, according to A. H. Demke, executive director of the International Baby Chick Association. "Fried chicken and eggs stand a good chance to approach an all-time high price level by next fall," he said, and urges poultrymen to guard against such a possibility by raising more chicks.

A big increase in wild turkeys this fall is predicted by old-timers around Camp Wood, Texas, in the Hill Country west of San Antonio.

Two sets of twin calves have been born on the Henry Lewis ranch, near Uvalde, the first twins in the Lewis herds in 50 years.

Texas cows produced an average of 10.9 pounds of milk each on May 1, 1937, compared with 10.6 a year ago and 9.4 in May, 1935, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics showed. Highest State was California with 21.2 pounds.

The raising of English peas on a big scale is under way in the Irving (Dallas county) vicinity this year. The Trinity Farm Security Company has drilled 85 acres of three different varieties of English peas for fresh green canning purposes.

Dallas county truck growers are experiencing a freakish condition this year which has resulted in almost the entire loss of their cabbage crop. Cabbage plants put out in the early spring are bearing long stems with yellow flowers instead of the customary head.

The Lower Rio Grande Valley's 1937 potato deal, which is now closed, brought that section a gross return of slightly more than $1,000,000, according to figures compiled from statistics gathered by the U. S. Market News Bureau and information furnished by shippers.

The House Appropriation Committee in Washington has expressed approval of a measure to establish a cattle disease research station in Brazoria county. Representative J. J. Mansfield, of Columbus, has introduced a resolution calling for an initial appropriation of $25,000 and an annual maintenance of $10,000.

Nearly 35 million pounds of farm products were purchased in Texas in 1936 through a national program for the removal of price-depressing surpluses. The products purchased were turned over to the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation for distribution in co-operation with State relief agencies.

The average staple length of Texas cotton was 14.77 sixteenths-inch for 1934, and 14.87 sixteenths-inch for 1935; whereas the average staple length for the entire United States crop was 15.58 sixteenths-inch for 1934 and 15.47 sixteenths-inch for 1935, said E. A. Miller, agronomist of the Texas Extension Service. "Each year the average staple length of cotton produced in Texas decreases, largely due to the advent of the boll weevil," Miller said.

The work of fighting fever ticks in Harris county will continue until the ticks have been eliminated, according to a statement by C. S. Bates, county supervisor of tick eradication work. He said a total of $3,940.42 had been spent in the county on the work. Commission workers have inspected and dipped 11,902 herds, or a total of 152,268 head of cattle.

Jack Barnhart, Cooke county, and James Grote, Mason county, have been selected to represent some 30,000 Texas 4-H club boys at the National 4-H Club encampment at Washington, June 17-23, L. L. Johnson, State boys' club agent has announced. Starting with one pig, Barnhart has made a net profit of $2,319.21 in three years. MARGARET HUTTON —free-style and back-stroke champion and famous for her record-breaking performances as a plunger—has smoked Camels since 1935.

JANE FAUNTZ MANSKE started smoking Camels 2 years ago. This Chicago girl's superb diving form won her National and Olympic honors.

JOSEPHINE McKIM —holds records in both sprint and distance free-style events. Camels have been her favorite cigarette for 3 years now.

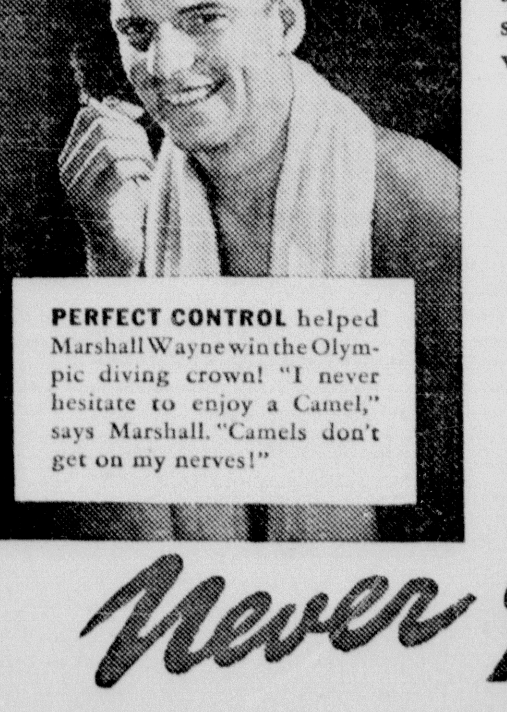
GEORGIA COLEMAN —made Olympic history in her spectacular spring-board diving victory in 1932. She became a Camel smoker that same year.

LENORE KIGHT WINGARD —the foremost woman free-style swimmer—holds 7 world's records, 16 national ones. Camels have been her cigarette for 4 years.

DOROTHY POYNTON HILL —petite, blonde Los Angeles beauty—the incomparable Queen of the 33-foot platform dive—became a Camel fan over a year ago.

SPRINT STAR. Arthur Lindegren swam to a new 200-meter free-style record. "Camels give me a generous 'lift' in energy when I'm tired after swimming," says Art.

OLYMPIC STAR. Arthur Highland smashed records in the dash and middle-distance events. Arthur says: "Smoking Camels with my meals eases the strain after racing."



PERFECT CONTROL helped Marshall Wayne win the Olympic diving crown! "I never hesitate to enjoy a Camel," says Marshall. "Camels don't get on my nerves!"

WHAT THESE ACE MERMAIDS SAY—Dorothy Poynton Hill speaking: "I prefer Camels for their mildness. They never jangle my nerves. I can enjoy smoking as often as I wish. I think that another advantage of smoking Camels is the invigorating 'lift' they give me when I'm tired after a strenuous workout."

Lenore Kight Wingard—one of the greatest American woman athletes of our times—adds this: "I really get fun out of swimming. Hard work is part of the game. It's grand the way Camels help me enjoy my food no matter how tired or strained I may be. And I've found Camels do not irritate my throat."

Our Boys and Girls

AUNT MARY, Editor, Route 5, Box 179-B, Fort Worth, Texas.

THE ROAD OF ADVENTURE

DEAR FRIENDS:

As we welcome this first month of summer, we are reminded of many things. Sitting here, as I do, on top of a wide wind-swept hill. I am taking, in fancy, a bird's-eye view of this wonderful world of ours. Some of you may say, "Wonderful world, indeed!" How can you say it with all the terrible things that are coming to pass upon the earth? Indeed, the world is wonderful because it IS wonderfully and fearfully made. But the acts of men make things uncertain and disturbing. The youth of today have the greatest pioneering field in the history of the human race. Many years ago pioneering meant "going west" and blazing trails across unknown and dangerous lands. Today, youth may pioneer into the air, into science, chiefly into leadership for good among the people of the earth.

Wherever we turn today, we hear the cry for a leader. While many false and evil leaders rise and hold sway for a day, yet they do not last. We know that only truth and honor can survive the hardships which must be suffered by a leader. Who knows but what some boy or girl now reading this page, may in the very near future become a leader that will guide the people to right living and clear thinking?

Each month we try to tell you about the things that will help make better men and women.

In order to climb to the top of the ladder in whatever we undertake, it is necessary to do several things. First of all, we must prepare ourselves for whatever opportunity comes our way. So of course it is necessary that we study hard and faithfully every subject that is available to us. Boys and girls should study hard in school. Men and women should read and study every spare moment they have. We all know that we go to school primarily to learn HOW to study. If we don't apply ourselves to our studies, it will be very difficult in later life to make up that time we have so wastefully lost.

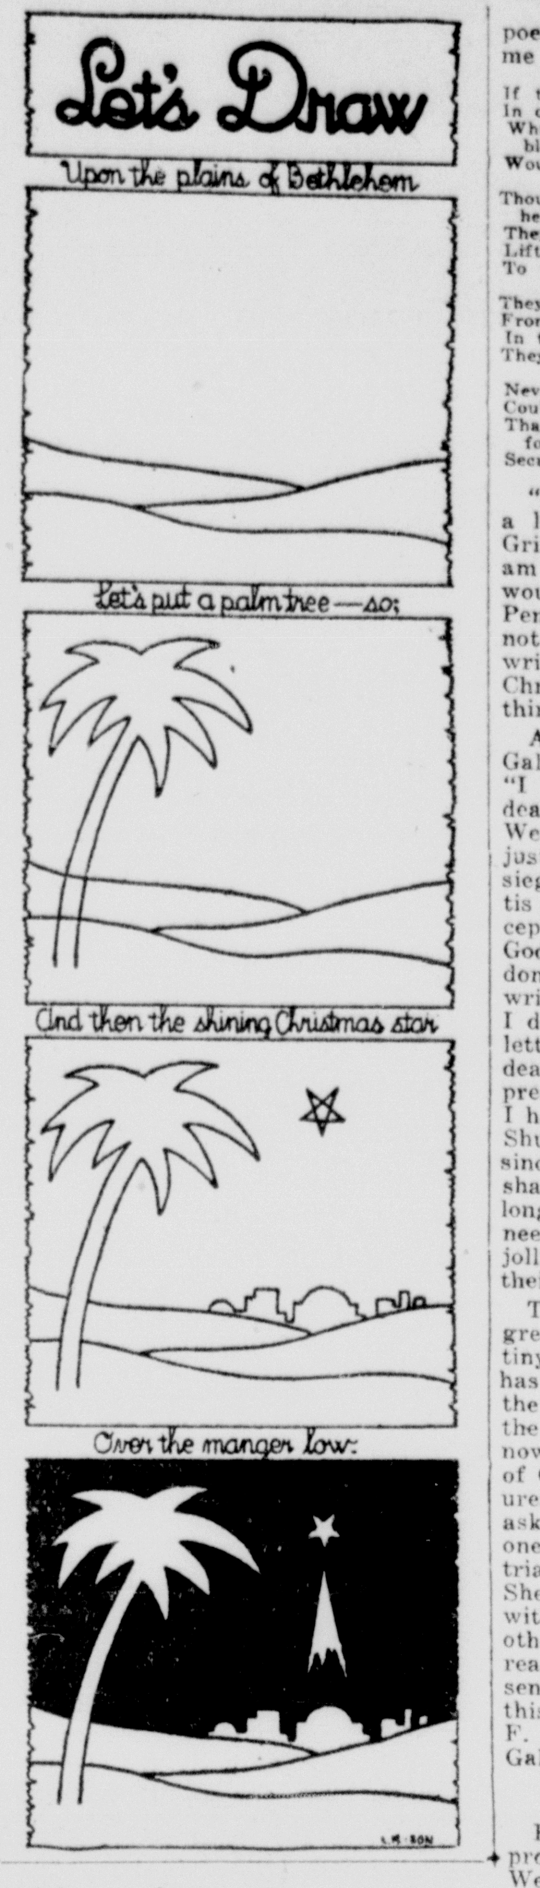
I am sure that if every boy and girl could realize how precious time is, they would never lose a moment. We should think of time as the greatest and most valuable thing we possess. Then, too, don't forget that to each life there is allotted only so much time. Perhaps it will be only twenty years, perhaps forty, and some even as much as a hundred years; but whatever the time, it will be very, very short. Time in this life is so short, and there is so much to do, we must all be very busy and make the most of what we have. We cannot add one second to this life no matter how much we wish. So use your time well; guard it more carefully than any jewel on earth. Prepare yourself for a full and useful life, for somewhere in the great machine of life you will be called upon to do your part. Resolve to do that part well.

To the June graduate, may we extend our congratulations and wishes for a full and happy life.

To the June bride, we send our love, and hope from the depths of our heart that your home will be a little heaven here on earth, filled with happiness and health.

We would love to hear from all the readers of this page.

With love,
(Signed) AUNT MARY.



Let's Draw

Let's put a palm tree—so;
And then the shining Christmas star
Over the manger low:

D. Y. B. CLUB NEWS

It is with pleasure that I have watched the growth of our new club. It is so gratifying to know that so many boys and girls are interested in doing the fine and noble things in life.

Just remember this is YOUR club and we are so happy to have any suggestions from the members. We would like to have departments which are interesting to all of you. If there is some special thing you enjoy in club work, write and tell us. If possible, we will use it in this club.

There are some interesting letters this month—but not nearly enough. Come on, boys and girls, write us and give us permission to use your letters on this page. The members enjoy hearing about you, and the things you are trying to do. Let me hear from at least 100 boys and girls this month.

David Lewis, Henryetta, Okla., wants to join the club and be a pal to many. He has been a Shut-In for about 18 years, and of course, letters mean so much to him. We welcome David Lewis to the club.

Anna Mae Colon, Agra, Okla., says: "God bless you all. I certainly have enjoyed the club news. It surely is good."

Mrs. M. C. Duncan, Fairy, Texas, has been in the club for a long time. She writes that she is not able to subscribe to a paper which carries the Boys' and Girls' page. Here is an opportunity for someone to be a "good Samaritan" and send her a paper. Who will do it? That is, promise to send her one every month so that she may keep up with the club? She writes: "The Lord has done so much for me."

Beulah Lamb, Hazel Kentucky, has been a member and reader of this page for a long time. In fact, is among the oldest members. Her letters have been a constant source of encouragement to Aunt Mary, and a pleasure to any Shut-In and others as well. We commend this good woman to all those who wish to write to a Shut-In. Having been bed-fast for many years and suffering intense pain, she carries on bravely fighting the battle of life with courage. Following is a beautiful poem which she sent to me in May:

If the Shut-Ins are united
In one voice of common prayer,
What a ceaseless shower of blessing
Would be falling everywhere.

Though weak and sometimes helpless,
They wield a mighty power
Lifting up their soul petitions
To the Saviour every hour.

They can importune the Father,
From the secret place—and know
In the quiet and the stillness
They can trust Him here below.

Never soldier in fierce conflict
Could a higher honor bring,
Than the Shut-In now performing
Secret service for the King.

"Dear Friends," begins a letter from Ruby Mae Griffin, Jayton, Texas. "I am a lonely farm girl. I would like to have some Pen or Pencil Pal. Am not a Shut-In, but love to write letters to good Christian people. I am thirty-five years of age."

Aunt Susan Hughes, Galveston, Texas, says: "I wrote you about the death of Lucy Neeman. We shall miss her. I am just up from a 10-day siege of flu. I have arthritis all over by body except in my hands. I thank God I can still write. I don't think anyone has written Mrs. Alice Rust. I do appreciate the many letters sent me by the dear sunshiners. I do appreciate every letter I get. I have written one or two Shut-Ins every month since I have been sick, and shall continue to do so as long as I can. I know the needs of outside cheer and jolly letters. How great their need. Love to all."

This is a letter from a great soul in a frail and tiny body. Aunt Susan has been a real help to the boys and girls through the years past. We pause now to pay tribute to one of God's most noble creatures here on earth. We ask the prayers of every one in these hours of trial for our dear friend. She suffers greatly, but with it all, thinks first of others. We hope every reader of this page will send a letter or post card this month to Mrs. Susan F. Hughes, 1804 25th St., Galveston, Texas.

Contest News

Here is the contest promised for this month. We hope every reader of this page will enter. The subject is one that is of general interest, and I am sure all of you have a very definite opinion concerning it. Let us hear your side of the question. Be sure and READ THE RULES CAREFULLY, as they must be followed in order to win. REMEMBER, you may have as good a chance to win as anyone.

Contest Subject

The subject of this contest is, "Do Boys and Girls Have as Many Opportunities Today as They Had One Hundred Years Ago."

You are asked to write a letter of 150 words or less on the above subject. You may choose either side of the question. That is, you may think they do have as many opportunities, or you may choose the negative side of the question. Prizes will be awarded for the letter giving the most reasonable and clearly stated facts. Both sides of the question will be given equal consideration by the judges. What we want to know is what the boys and girls today REALLY think on this subject. Either side of the question has an equal chance to win. Your reasons will form the basis of the judging.

Rules for Contest

1. You must be a member of the D. Y. B. Club. If you are not now a member, fill out the coupon on this page and attach to your entry. This will qualify your entry. If you are already a member, state at the top of letter, "I am a member of the D. Y. B. Club."
2. (a) Write your letters on one side of the paper ONLY. (b) WRITE PLAINLY. (c) In the upper RIGHT hand corner of your entry be sure and put your name, address, age and number of words. Failure to do any of these things will disqualify your letter.
3. Letters must be postmarked not later than July 5th, 1937. Write your letter NOW.
4. Use 150 words or less in the letter on the subject stated.
5. This contest is open to boys and girls under 21 years of age ONLY.

Al Jones' Courtship

Al Jones had been calling on Nellie White for some time and he had a bad habit of staying late.

One night, to get rid of him, Nellie remarked that her father said he was going to use the shotgun if he didn't go home earlier.

A few weeks later Al was calling and Nellie planned some fun; she excused herself for a moment, then went into the other room and told her father that Al would like to see his new rifle.

Old man White proudly took the gun down from its hooks and started out to exhibit it, but Al saw him coming. He jumped through a window and ran for home at a record-breaking speed. As he crossed the back pasture a jack rabbit jumped up and ran down the path ahead of him. Al kicked the long-eared speedster aside and yelled, "Get out of the way, you slow skate, and let someone run that knows how."

And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not. John 1:5.

A LITTLE FUN Jokes to Make You Laugh

Too Late

Rural Constable (at scene of murder)—"You can't come in here, I tell you."

City Reporter—"But I'm a reporter. I've been sent to do the murder."

Constable—"Too late, buddy. The murder's been done."

Playing Safe

Mother—Now, Janey, be a nice girl and give your little brother part of your apple.

Janey—Not me, mother. That was what my Sunday school teacher said Eve did to Adam, and you know how she's been blamed ever since.

Here lies the body of Jerry Gay,
Who died maintaining his right of way;
He knew he was right as he sped along,
But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong.

Hill Billy

A denizen of the hills of East Tennessee, who was appearing as a witness in a law suit, was being questioned as to his educational qualifications by the plaintiff's lawyer.

"Can you write?" asked the lawyer.

"Nope."

"Can you read?"

"Wa'al, I kin read figgers pretty well, but I don't do so good with writin'."

"How is that ?"

"Wa'al, take these here signs along the road when I want to go somwhars; I kin read how fur, but not whurto."

Next Door

The book peddlar knocked, and the door was opened by a grumpish looking woman.

"Have you Charles Dickens in your house?" he asked.

"No," snapped the woman.

"Or Robert Louis Stevenson, or Walter Scott?" he continued, hope dawning in his eyes.

"No, we ain't," said the woman. We don't take in lodgers, but they take 'em in next door.. Try thar."

Forgetful

The druggist was instructing his absent-minded delivery boy to take some medicine to a Mr. Crummack.

"Now remember his name is Crummack. It rhymes with stomach," was the druggist's final warning.

About an hour later the boy returned, saying there was no Mr. Lumberjack anywhere around that street number.

Charley at the Bakery

Little Charley was sent to the bakery for some hot cross buns.

"What will you have, my little man?" asked the baker.

"I want fifteen cents worth of cross-eyed buns," replied the boy.

Always Works

"How do you manage, on your small salary, to have such well-cooked delicious meals?"

"The secret is simple. Every day I kiss the cook and do all I can to make her happy."

"But doesn't your wife object?"

"Not a bit. She's the cook."

Spick and Span

There is a certain suburban home whose owner's principal delight is keeping it spick and span. After dinner he and a guest were smoking on the lawn. The guest, after lighting his cigar, threw the burned match on the ground.

"Oh, I wouldn't do that, George," said the host.

"Why not?"

"It spoils the appearance of everything," was the answer. "It's just those little things that make a place look bad."

The guest smoked his cigar in silence for a few minutes; then, without a word, got up walked down the road, and disappeared. He returned in a short time.

His host asked: "Where have you been, George?"

"Oh, I just went down to spit in the river," said George.

There once was a man tall and sleek,
Who imagined himself quite a shiek,
But the girls didn't fall
For the fellow at all—
He made only fifteen a week.

All Washed Out

An Irishman named Ryan did an act in a circus with his wife. The act was a very simple one and involved only the use of a rock and a hammer. He would place a white chalky rock on his wife's head, step back, swing his hammer and bring it down on the rock so hard that it was smashed into fragments. Then, as the audience was still gasping, he and his wife would bow, disappear into the tent and reappear two hours later to repeat the same stunt.

Years afterwards while he was applying at a railway office for the job of night-watchman, the clerk in charge recognized him. "What's happened to your regular business, Ryan?" he asked.

"All washed out. The wife wouldn't go on with it."

"Gave her headaches, eh?"

"Naw. Broke her arches down."

Defining a Picnic

Teacher—"How would you define a picnic?"

Jimmy—"A picnic is a day set apart to get better acquainted with chiggers, ants, bugs, worms, mosquitoes and poison ivy."

New Foreman's Ego

New Foreman—"What are ye doin' there, Rafferty?"

Rafferty—"I'm oilin' the wheelbarrow."

New Foreman—"Well, lave it alone. I'll do it meself. What do you know about machinery!"

No Guesswork

Lawyer—"Can you tell me if the defendant was expensively garbed?"

Negress—"'Deed she was, mister. I knows 'spensive garbage when I sees it."

IT'S ALWAYS BIG NEWS—

THIS MILD-SMOKING, TASTY "MAKIN'S" TOBACCO

JIM ROBERTSON (standing) says: "O.K., chief. Most everyone I meet favors P.A. It lays right—rolls firm and neat. There's no spilling."

EDITOR LOU HARRIS (on the 'phone) finds Prince Albert just right. "P.A. made big news in my life. I didn't know 'makin's' tobacco could be so 100% tasty and full-bodied, yet so mild and mellow!"

Poultry News

Prevention of Summer Diseases

"It is very necessary that June chicks be grown on clean ground," says Mrs. B. A. Barker, writing in the American Poultry Journal. "Disease is more likely to hit the late ones, because of the fact that they get out on the ground younger and range farther than do the early broods. If we want to keep away from trouble with coccidiosis and worms, you must see that the chicks are kept free from the contamination of the earlier broods and also from the laying flocks. Diseases flourish in damp unsanitary conditions. Clean the houses as soon as they become damp; and the chick range should be dry and well drained.

"Any puddles or stagnant pools which may form on the range or around the drinking founts should be filled with gravel so as to discourage drinking from these contaminated spots. Warm weather not only encourages the multiplication of disease organisms, but it also causes lice and mites to multiply very rapidly, so the brooder house should be painted with a wood preservative or a specially prepared mite killer. Prevention is the best cure. Keep the birds in clean quarters and on clean ground, and you are giving your chicks a chance to make a normal steady growth throughout this summer.

Late chicks must also be fed well; they cannot rough it during the summer if they are to make sufficient growth to bring them into lay in time to get fall or winter eggs. It takes a well balanced diet in order to get proper framework and growth. Egg size is affected by the feeding program. Size of egg is directly influenced by the growth the pullets make. Maximum growth must be obtained before the short days arrive. Place extra mash hoppers in the shade on the range and give the birds plenty of fresh drinking water.'

Build for the Chickens' Comfort

Poultrymen who build houses for their flocks make no mistake to observe the following rules:

1. Protection from extreme heat or cold or sudden changes in temperature..
2. Sufficient ventilation to secure dryness.
3. Sufficient window openings to admit a lot of light and sunshine.
4. Convenience in routine management.
5. Promotion of sanitation.
6. Economical construction.

Missouri Experiment Station recommends a 6 foot wall in the rear and an 8 foot wall in the front for a shed roof type of house—which is pretty well in line with general practice.
